The Star Route Cases Still Being Argued.

President Arthur at the Fifth Avenue—Washington News—Capitol Gossip—Political Points.

Mutilating Coins.

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 4.—A new method of mutilating silver currency is being employed by numbers of patent medicine vendors and others to advertise their goods and wares. Of late large numbers of coins have been received in the Treasury which are stamped on one side with advertisements. The stamps used are some sort of a die which cuts letters and words into the coin. In most instances the name of the owner of the article advertised is not cut on the coin, but the advertisement simply recommends a certain nostrum or article. As the coin is stamped only on one side it can be passed very readily, exposing only the perfect side. This is a mutilation of the currency and a violation of the law. The Secret Service has been directed to investigate this and hunt out and prosecute the offenders.

POSTAGE STAMPS.

Large numbers of cases of violation of the law prohibiting traffic in postage stamps are now receiving the attention of the Post-office Department, and special agents are hunting up offending Postmasters all over the country. Postmasters are forbidden to sell stamps except to the locality to which their offices belong, but many of them violate this law. One Postmaster at a small village in Virginia has made a profit of nearly five hundred dollars in the last few months selling stamps to Baltimore merchants at ten per cent discount. The postal authorities say they are determined to break up this traffic.

MASON'S COURT MARTIAL.

The order of the War Department in rescinding its order for a court martial to try Mason for an attempt upon Guiteau's life has caused considerable comment, some intimating that its purpose was to let Mason off without a trial. At the War Department the officers say that evidence going to show that Mason is really insane has been submitted. Upon receiving this the department recalled the order for a court martial, and directed that Mason be placed under medical surveillance with a view of ascertaining whether or not he is insane. He is now in charge of the surgeons at the arsenal, who are keeping a close watch upon him. If they report him insane he will be sent to the Government asylum without trial; but if they report him sane, another court martial will be ordered to try him.

The New British Minister.

PHILADELPHIA, November 4.—The steamship Indiana, having on board the new British Minister, arrived about noon, and the reception committee escorted Mr. West to the hotel. This evening he will be the recipient of a banquet at St. George's Hall.

Previous to landing a reception was held in the cabin of the steamer by Mr. West. Joel Cook, secretary of the committee, read an address of welcome from the Mayor, in which the latter regretted his inability to be present, but tendered the hospitality of the city to the Minister and said: A great blow has recently befallen us; the hand of the assassin has consigned our beloved Chief Magistrate to an untimely grave. From the time of the assassination to his lamented death your people and your Queen have shown the deepest anxiety and grief, and thus contributed to bind the two nations closer together. The frequent womanly telegrams of her Majesty, disregarding the formalities of court, have created the warmest feelings of attachment to her in the hearts of every American."

Another address was read by J. Price Wetherell on behalf of the reception committee. Minister West responded briefly to the welcome extended. He said: "I hardly know how to sufficiently thank you for the kindness of this welcome. Of the relations existing between England and America I need say nothing. Her Majesty's sympathy with the American people has been unmistakably shown and I shall use my best endeavor to maintain and strengthen the amicable relations which have hitherto existed between the two countries."

The Star Route Cases.

WASHINGTON, November 4.—Argument on the motion to set aside the criminal information in the Star Route cases was resumed this morning. George Bliss addressed the court on behalf of the Government. He gave reasons for seeking to file information as follows: The grand jury had been adjourned till the 3d of October, and what we regarded as the most important and effective overt acts in pursuance of this conspiracy had taken place on the 1st of October, 1878. It was open to claim therefore that under the three years' statute of limitations unless proceedings were commenced in court before the first of October, 1881, they would be barred under the statute. We were placed in a condition that if we did not file or seek to file information we felt we should not have done our duty to the Government. We, therefore, adopted the proceeding by information subject of course to a motion to set aside. I think we may claim to be here without being exposed to the denunciations which we heard yesterday of having made an attack upon people, of having undertaken to violate their dearest rights Brady having substituted himself in place of people.

President Arthur.

NEW YORK, November 4.—President Arthur received a large number of visitors to-day at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. The interviews were brief, however, the President intimating in a friendly way to callers that after a day or two he would have more leisure and would be happy to have his friends renew their visits. Ex Secretary Windom paid a visit to the Sub Treasury Department this afternoon, and afterward returned to the Fifth Avenue Hotel and remained with the President and Mr. Conkling for an hour.

District Attorney Corkhill.

WASHINGTON, November 4.—It is learned from good authority that President Arthur is seriously considering the question of superseding District Attorney Corkhill.

THE NEWARK BANK.

More Developments in the Rottenness of the Mechanics' National.

NEWARK, N. J., November 4.—Henry B Marchbank, a well known resident of Belleville, and former corresponding clerk of the Mechanics' National Bank, was arrested last night on a charge of being a defaulter to the bank in the sum of $50,000 within the last three years. Marchbank left the bank about two years ago and the defalcation was covered up. He has not yet given bail and is in custody of the Deputy Marshal.

Jumped From a Window.

COLUMBUS, O., November 4.—Emma Beckman, of Warsaw, Ind., who jumped from a fourth story window yesterday, died this morning. She was unconscious from the first and it is not known whether she intended suicide or walked out while temporarily deranged.

Shot by a Discharged Employe.

DENVER, COL., November 4.—The Republican's Buena Vista special says: John Evans, chief engineer of the Denver, South Park and Pacific Road, was this afternoon shot and dangerously wounded by a discharged employe. The assailant was arrested and locked up.

Railroad Stocks and Schemes.

NEW YORK, November 4.—The Union Pacific has given notice that the agreement with the Pacific Mail has been canceled. It is reported the Union and Central companies are willing to form a new alliance with the Pacific Mail, upon terms somewhat less favorable to the steamship company and also to purchase the two Pacific Mail steamships forming the China Line. A probable satisfactory adjustment will be made within a short time. If not, the stock will, in the opinion of insiders, go down considerably.

The pool in Texas Pacific are actively at work for an advance in that stock. Vanderbilt is said to have bought Northwest yesterday. Fully two thousand car loads of freight have accumulated at stations awaiting completion on the Lexington and Big Sandy Extension of the Chesapeake and Ohio road. Confederate bonds are weak. A scheme for the extension of the Atlantic and Pacific across the Indian Territory will soon be announced.

FORSTER.

Forster, Chief Secretary for Ireland, comes to London for the approaching Cabinet council.

Ireland.

LONDON, November 4.—A correspondent at Armagh, speaking of fears that the Land Court will be blocked, says as soon as a few decisions have been given and as soon as the tendency of the decisions begins to be grasped by the landlord and tenant an amicable arrangement will take place in an overwhelming proportion of cases.

A REIGN OF TERROR.

LONDON, November 4.—Archbishop Croke, of Cashel, replying to an address of a branch of the Land League, advised the tenants to tender a fair rent. If refused the fault would not be theirs. It would show the Irish can for their country's sake endure insults and injuries. He declared the Government had established a reign of terror.

SEDITIOUS DESIGNS.

LONDON, November 4.—There is some reason to believe the Irish Government had information of serious designs of a section of the extremists to provoke risings throughout the country before the progress of the land act had time to create a better feeling among the people. The Government, however, was well prepared.

DASTARDLY CRIMES.

LOUGHREA, November 4.—After the tenant farmer Doherty, who was decoyed out of his house at Carrigan, was shot, the murderers visited the house of his cousin, who has also been boycotted in connection with an agrarian dispute, and after vainly endeavoring to decoy him from the house, fired through the windows, but without effect.

PITY THE POOR.

How Paupers are Being Bandied About Across the State.

More Small-Pox—Public Improvements—City Hall Notes.

The Mayor has been besieged recently by applications from paupers who have been sent here from Kansas City for admission to the City Hospital. The applicants say that the Kansas City authorities tell them that the institutions there are crowded, and that there is plenty of hospital room in St. Louis, where they will be gladly received and kindly attended to. Yesterday three destitute sick cases from the other side of the State applied to the Mayor for relief and told the above story. The Kansas City authorities said they could not provide hospital accommodations for them, but would give them free transportation to this city, with the inducement at this end of the line that they would be nursed back to health and strength in our City Hospital. Mayor Ewing assured them that everything had been misrepresented, and that St. Louis was not going to care for the sick and destitute of other cities. He gave them transportation back to Kansas City and advised them to stay where they belonged. He also addressed a letter to the Mayor of Kansas City informing him that some persons had taken it upon themselves to flood this town with Kansas City's paupers, and adding a few lines to the effect that all destitute cases sent here would be sent back at once and as often as they came. The fare between here and Kansas City is very low, and the authorities there find it cheaper to get rid of their poor than to take care of them.

Yesterday a destitute and sick German, with his sick wife and four young children, were dumped at the Union Depot as a sort of gift from the people of Franklin, Mo., who collected enough money to send them here. Last night the Mayor sent the family back to Franklin. If the Franklinites choose to pay their fares this way again the family will be again fired back, and the game of shuttlecock will be kept up with them until either town gives in or the family dies out.

"Yes," said the Mayor; "I intend to send back every pauper that is thrust upon us, and to keep on sending them back until the contingent fund is exhausted. We are willing to take care of our own poor. We play no such tricks upon any other municipality, and we don't want to and won't be imposed upon by any of them."

SMALL POX.

John Bachman, a German, aged 26 years, arrived in the city this morning, having a case of small-pox among his baggage. He had been a resident of Chicago for the past year. He is a baker by trade and came here to get work. An ambulance carried him to Quarantine this afternoon. There are now nine cases of small-pox in Quarantine, two or three of which are bad, but not dangerous. All the patients will recover.

THE WATER SUPPLY.

Two or three days ago Water-Commissioner Whitman sent a letter to Fire-Chief Sexton informing him that a practical test of the supply of water furnished at the late Collier fire might be had by placing a number of engines at work on the six inch pipe on Market street, and requesting the Chief to make such a test in order that the question recently discussed of the possibility of obtaining a sufficiency of water from a six-inch pipe might be settled to the satisfaction of all, and demonstrated in an indisputable way. The Fire Chief has not yet answered the letter, and has made no manifestation of a willingness to try the test. Commissioner Whitman says he would like to see the engines at work again on Market street. President Flad of the Board of Public Improvements is also anxious for the test.

"I would like to see it," he says, "no matter who is right or wrong. It would be a practical demonstration of the supply power of the pipes and would settle this thing forever. For my part I believe with Mr. Whitman that there is plenty of water. I saw the engine at Tenth and Market on the day of the Collier fire, and I know it had plenty of water, although it could not throw a stream, for I saw water wasted from the plug and the suction main was leaking, which could not have been the case had the water supply been insufficient."

OFF FOR CHICAGO.

President Flad, of the Board of Public Improvements, goes to Chicago to-night in accordance with the instructions of the Municipal Assembly to study the plans in use there for consuming smoke with a view to introducing something of the kind here. Water Commissioner Whitman also goes to Chicago to take a look at the system of water distribution and to find something about the much talked of and loudly vaunted distribution of fire plugs, as many as six of which are to be placed in a single block. Street Commissioner Turner goes to Chicago, too, on some business connected with his office.

CITY HALL NOTES.

The Water Department employes will be paid off to-morrow.

Ten burial certificates were issued by the Health Officer to-day.

Dr. A. C. Robinson, formerly City Physician, was among the visitors to the Mayor to-day.

The Collector paid $1,678 27 into the city treasury to-day on account of licenses, and $9,113 80 for taxes.

Ex-Treasurer Patrick and his son J. M. Patrick are expected here to-morrow from Tennessee. Young Patrick comes to answer the indictment found against him by the grand jury in connection with the loss of $2,000 from the city treasury last February.

PROSTITUTING THE SCHOOLS.

Republican Members of the Board to Make the System a Part of the Machine.

Few people who have watched closely the course of politics in St. Louis will be surprised at the Republican caucus of members of the School Board held last night at the Lindell Hotel. It was there proposed to throw the whole public school system into politics—to make it part of the plunder of a political victory, and to make party usefulness rather than education and ability the test by which teachers should hold and gain their situations. It was agreed by most of the members present that they had been elected as Republicans and that they had a right to use the machinery of the board in coming campaigns. On this point Judge Dailey, who was the leading spirit of the meeting, said:

"You have the Teachers' Committee, which represents ever one thousand teachers, nine hundred and odd of whom are women, every one of them connected with families, and nearly every one of them born and reared in the city of St. Louis, with fathers, mothers uncles or aunts. I can take 923 teachers and I can control 2,000 votes in the city election. There is not a man in the city who will not do more for these struggling women than for anything else. That is controlled by a Democratic president. It struck me as singular when I entered the board. There are three important committees controlling that wonderful influence. How was it that Mr. Judson should give the chairmanship of these committees to Democrats? Was it an accident or was it a premeditated thing? I say directly and positively, premeditated."

A resolution was passed, committing the caucus to the election of a Republican president, and demanding that the control of all the committees be given into the hands of the Republican members of the board. Mr. Bouton, Mr. Busch, and several other members of the board declared that they would not be bound by the caucus and left the meeting, after which the caucus adjourned. This is only the beginning of the movement which will eventually drag the public schools into the mire of politics. A majority of the gentlemen present at the caucus were strongly in favor of prostituting the system as indicated.

MR. JUDSON,

president of the School Board, said this morning that it was doing him great injustice to say that he had organized the Board in the interest of the Democrats. The Building and the Teachers' Committees, which were made points of attack at the caucus last night, were cases in point. Of the seven members of the Teachers' Committee five were Republicans. The same was the case in the Building Committee, and the only two Democrats who were on it were always fighting and never under any circumstances were united in sentiment. Mr. Judson said that anybody who would take the trouble to count would find that more than a majority of the chairmen of the committees were Republicans.

GREEN'S LITTLE GAME.

Messrs. Gilkeson and Sloss Each Add a Wor to the History of the Outrage.

The details of Charles Green's outrageou attack on Mr. Sloss, printed in yesterday's POST-DISPATCH, have caused a genuine wave of indignation in commercial circles, where both are well known. A great many gentlemen, not satisfied with the story printed, made it their business to call upon Mr. Gilkeson and Mr. Sloss, and inquire into the particulars of the outrage, which were rather understated in the story. They learned that Green had deliberately and continuously tried to run Mr. Sloss down, and the only vindication which his friends have been able to find for him is that he was too drunk to know what he was doing. In speaking of the affair this morning Mr. Sloss said: "I do not want to be understood as saying that Green made the attack on me because he mistook me for my partner. I am now disposed to believe that he was so drunk that he neither knew or cared who I was. When I demanded an explanation he told me that he wanted me to find out who he was."

The reporter saw Mr. Gilkeson, who desired to make a statement in regard to the case.

"I did not understand that my name was to be used," he said, "but now that it has come out I want you to correct one statement made in the article. I had no 'acrimonious correspondence' with Mr. Green, at the time of his difference of opinion with the cotton committee and only met him a couple of times. Consequently as far as I know there is no cause for personal animosity between us. I did not want to be dragged into a newspaper fight, but I conceived it my duty to say something when the life of a friend of mine was wantonly put in danger. I am not excusing myself for telling the facts to the POST-DISPATCH. I would have done the same had any citizen's life been imperiled by any drunken man. I simply wish to correct the impression, which one would get from the article, that there is any cause for quarrel between Mr. Green and myself. If there were I would not make a newspaper the vehicle of my grievances."

The general sentiment on the Cotton Exchange is that it was particularly fortunate for Green that Mr. Sloss reasoned his son out of the idea of taking summary vengeance for the outrage.

A FATAL JOKE.

Cruelly Awakened From a Happy Dream of Love, a Glove-maker Ends Her Life.

How Amalia Pohl Received Her Refusal of Marriage From a Young Man.

This morning Coroner Frank held an inquest on the body of Amalia Pohl. The facts elicited at the investigation were as follows: The deceased was alone in the world and deformed by an accident in childhood, when her back was broken, since which she has been a hunchback. She was forty years of age and her only friend was Clara Muller, a niece, who assisted in supporting her. She worked for Ehrhardt, a glove manufacturer on Pratte avenue, and lived in a room by herself at No. 2649 Elizabeth street. Yesterday the family living in the adjoining room did not hear the hunchback's machine going as usual, and their suspicions were aroused. They broke in the room and found the tenant dead in her bed, in a stooping posture. By her side was a teacup containing the dregs of a solution of paris green, and near this the paper that had contained the poison. Under a sheet of paper, on which were written several verses on love, lay three notes, written in German, but not signed. They were as follows:

NO. 1.

"DEAR CLARA: This night is the most trouble in all my life. Oh, how little have I known myself and how low have I fallen. I became ungrateful and bad. I believe I have been mistreated by the world, and I am the cause of my mistreatment."

NO. 2.

"MR. EHRHERET: My conscience doesn't allow me to rest. This night will be my last."

NO. 3.

"Farewell, dear Clara, I am tired of life. Everything is distasteful to me. Last night I tried to see you once more, but I could not meet your eyes with this determination in my heart, so I went away without seeing you. Forgive me, for I could not do otherwise. You were always kind to me, although sometimes a little harsh. Forgive me. Farewell."

The woman lived alone and her only associates were those who worked with her. They frequently told her that a young German living in the vicinity was in love with her, and had him to play a part in the deception. She was deeply in love with the young man, and her affection was a source of amusement for the girls working in the shop. She was persuaded that he had overlooked her deformity and believed his promises of future happiness. When the deception was complete he made no further advances to her, and a day or two ago she asked him if he would marry her. He had never expected this serious result from the joke and told at once that he would never marry her; she was old and deformed. She bore this shock to her feelings during the day and while in the presence of companions, but when she went to her room she purchased the Paris green and ended her existence. She was awakened from her happy dream of love and all her hopes were dissipated at once by the young man's refusal. She had no friends but her young niece, and suffering under this blow she took the fatal dose of poison.

Legal Notes.

Judgments of condemnation were entered to-day in the Circuit Court, for the opening of Penrod road and in alley block 1790.

The will of Henry Von der Au was admitted to probate to-day. It bears date May 21, 1878. The property is left to the widow.

In the suit of Castleman vs. Gross, final judgment in favor of plaintiff for $1 80 was rendered to-day in the Circuit Court.

In Judge Boyle's court to-day the trial of the suit J. N. Miller vs. St. Louis National Bank is still in progress, but the argument to the jury will probably be reached this evening.

The jury in the salmon suit of J. Cash & Co., of this city, vs. H. H. Hughes & Co., of San Francisco, returned a verdict this morning in favor of the defendants. They had shipped a car-load of salmon to St. Louis, the greater portion of which was spoiled in transit, but it was shown that the fish left San Francisco in good condition.

Sheriff Mason attached to-day a stock of silks, satins and gros grains, valued at $4,500, to satisfy a writ sued out by the New York firm of Walker & Coombs against the New York Silk Manufacturing Company. The plaintiffs allege that the defendants had removed the property to St. Louis beyond the reach of creditors, and hence the attachment proceeding. Judge Adams granted an order of sale, as the goods can be disposed of advantageously at this season.

The suit of the Valley National Bank against Leopold Frank and Gustav Heilendahl is on trial before Judge Thayer and a special jury to-day. The bank sues for the value of some hides taken by defendants from the store of Bienenstock & Trieber. The defendants, however, show a clear title of purchase, but the bank claims the property on the ground that, although warehoused at Bienenstock's, it was pledged as collateral with the bank for moneys advanced and that an agent of the bank was in possession of the stock, valued at $1,000.

LOOKING BACK.

Fair were the dreamful days of old,
When, in the sleepy summer shade,
Beneath the beeches on the wold,
The shepherds lay, and gently played
Music to maidens, who, afraid,
Drew all altogether rapturously,
Their white soft hands like white leaves laid,
In the old, dear days in Arcady.

Men were not then as they are now,
Haunted and terrified by creeds;
They sought not then unceasingly to know
The end, that as a magnet leads;
Nor told with austere fingers beads,
Nor reasoned with their grief and glee;
But rioted in pleasant meads,
In the old, dear days in Arcady.

The future may be wrong or right,—
The present is distinctly wrong;
For life and love have lost delight,
And bitter even is our song.
And year by year, gray doubt grows strong.
And Death is all that seems to dree;
Wherefore, with weary hearts we long
For the old, dear days in Arcady.

ENVOI.

Glories and triumphs ne'er will cease,
But men may sound the heavens and sea;
One thing is lost for aye,—the peace
Of the old, dear days in Aready.

MABEL'S MANIA.

The Career of an Adventuress Who Now Languishes in a British Jail.

From the New York Tribune.

About seven years ago a young lady bearing the euphonious name of Mme. Evangeline Trenifidi appeared in the religious circles of Philadelphia asking for sympathy. Aid of any grosser sort would have seemed an insult to a being or to woes so refined. She was a descendent of one of the oldest families of English gentry. She had offended them by marriage with a dissolute Italian marquis, who had died and left her penniless and homeless with one child, now a boy of 6. But aid of the grosser sort in the way of invitations, costly gifts and money was urged upon her, which she accepted in an innocent, childish way. She was nothing but a grown-up child. Gray old financiers, Presbyterian doctors of divinity, the sons of St. George, Episcopalian bishops were in turn her friends and guardians. Nobody looked very curiously into her antecedents. Her brown hair curled in delicate rings about so sensitive a face, her eyes were so soft and appealing, her voice, low as Cordelia's, struck such a pathetic minor that nobody cared to look behind them.

Presently it was noticed, however, that one society and clique of humanitarians after another dropped the tender-eyed Evangeline or thrust her on into other hands. She began to shimmer and shift her character before the eyes of the good Philadelphians like a Proteau artiste on the burlesque stage. Now she had just been forgiven by her haughty relatives and inherited an Elizabethan mansion in Kent, with £20,000 per annum, and went about taking leave of her kind friends with crape-bordered kerchief to her eyes. A few days later she appeared on the platform beside Messrs. Moody and Sankey, the accredited correspondent of a well-known London journal. One week she was arrested on a charge of theft, and the next she was escorted by a guard of eminent Congressmen to the elevated dais in the Centennial Grounds and seated beside the President and the Emperor of Brazil while the exposition was opened. She next appeared in Washington as the guest of a committee of Senators and foreign diplomatists, and read in public at their instance a study of the "Life of Sumner." A few weeks later she was again in custody for stealing, and contrived almost to strangle herself with a veil knotted around her throat. Mme. Trenifidi then disappeared from Philadelphia, and Mabel Carter entered a missionary meeting in Pittsburg, walked slyly up to the pulpit, caught a venerable old clergyman by both hands, and claimed recognition as a fellow-worker with him years before for the souls of the heathen in Shanghai. He rubbed his spectacles, did recognize her, and the devout Mabel was handed tenderly around from one pious old lady to another as a religious prodigy during that winter. Again the police interfered, and the saintly young missionary vanished to reappear as a ministering angel in Prevna and through the Turco-Russian war, back in England as a second Florence Nightingale, and now, as our readers saw last week, sentenced as Mabel Wilberforce, alias Jones, after a trial which attracted attention throughout all England, to nine months' hard labor in jail.

Now this woman was not vicious by nature. She was kindly, generous, affectionate; but all her lesser virtues and faults were dominated by an overpowering passion for adventure. She threw up a certain income, comfort and respectability again and again to undertake some fresh role, play out a newly conceived lie to an impotent conclusion. She expended on these social dramas of her own construction and rendering as much talent, energy and downright hard work as would have brought her in a good income in any honest business. There are numberless Trenifidis in the community; with less power, brilliancy, and eclat, perhaps, than this wicked, charming Evangeline, but cast after precisely the same model. Why does not our society, rather Christianity, make use of them? It is only in the world of souls that capital is wasted; when will we learn how to economize and turn it to account? In the material world we force the noxious elements to serve a good purpose for the general benefit. Out of the deadly nightshade or the very poison of the rattlesnake we extract medicine of rare healing power; but for a human being in whom the predominance of wholesome, helpful qualities is paralyzed by the magnetism of some one eccentric evil passion we have only the clumsy way of handling of the police and jail.

The modern church of Rome and some of the ancient pagan religions knew better how to deal with such cases. They found work for the male and female Trenifidis in which their imagination and dramatic power found exercise helpful to the community. They strengthened their feeble moral sense by rigid discipline; in short, if they did not earn heaven for themselves, they were harmless to society. We, on the other hand, attend more to practical matters and less to training souls than they did in those earlier days of blinder faith. Not a river or brook finds its way to the sea which is not to contribute to the material wealth of the body politic; but these individual currents of human force, full, rich and sparkling, which might be made to carry fertility with them, are left to sink, uncared for, deep down to the dark kingdoms of death below.

A Typical Indian Village.

From Industral Arts of India, by Birdwood.

Outside the entrance of the single village street, on an exposed rise of ground, the hereditary potter sits by his wheel, molding the swift-revolving clay by the natural curves of his hands. At the back of the houses which form the low, irregular street there are two or three looms at work in blue and scarlet and gold, the frames hanging between the acacia trees, the yellow flowers of which drop fast on the webs as they are being woven. In the streets the brass and copper smiths are hammering away at their pots and pans, and further down, in the veranda of the rich man's house, is the jeweler working rupees and gold mohrs into fair jewelry, gold and silver ear-rings and round tires like the moon, bracelets and tablets, and nose-rings and tinkling ornaments for the feet, taking his designs from the fruits and flowers around him or from the traditional forms represented in the paintings and carvings of the great temple which rises over the grove of mangoes and palms at the end of the street, above the lotos-covered village tank. At 3:30 or 4 in the afternoon the whole street is lighted up by the moving robes of the women going down to draw water from the tank, each with two or three water-jars on her head, and so, while they are going and returning in single file, the scene glows like Titian's canvas and moves like the stately procession of the Panathenaic frieze. Later the men drive in the mild, gray kine from the moaning plain, the looms are folded up, the coppersmiths are silent, the elders gather in the gate, the lights begin to glimmer in the fast-falling darkness, the feasting and the music are heard on every side, and late into the night the songs are sung from the Ramayana or Mahabharata. The next morning, with sunrise, after the simple ablutions and adorations performed in the open air before the house, the same day begins again. This is the daily life going on all over Western India in the village communities of the Dakhan, among a people happy in their simple manners and frugal way of life, and in the culture derived from the grand epics of a religion in which they live and move and have their daily being, and in which the highest expression of their literature, art and civilization has been stereotyped for three thousand years.

Artesian Wells in New York.

From the New York Times.

Few people are aware of the extent to which boring for water has been carried in this city. Fifty-seven years ago, when all the world stood amazed at the vast proportions of Holt's (now United States) Hotel, at the corner of Pearl and Fulton streets, one of the special wonders was an artesian well under the house. This well was about 700 feet deep, going down through much mud and sand and some rock far below the bottom of East River. For a brief period the water was reasonably good, but soon the brine of the river mixed in and spoiled it, so that it was of no use whatever for cooking or washing clothes. Some years later Levi Disbrow bored a well near the corner of Broadway and Bleecker street, which was 448 feet deep. In this bore the water came within about 30 feet of the surface, and was then raised by a pump. It was estimated that this well would furnish 5,000 gallons an hour. One of the early artesian wells was at the drydock, and was 320 feet deep. The water was poor. The Manhattan Company, which for a quarter of a cetury furnished the city with water through wooden pipes, had several prolific wells in Thirteenth street near Fourth avenue and a small reservoir in Chambers street near Center. Within the past twenty years a great many wells have been bored in this city, and a large number have been failures. Flowing wells cannot be expected on Manhattan Island. Such wells are found only in valleys where the surrounding land is high, making a drainage basin of the lower land. On Manhattan Island there are no such conditions, and, therefore, no pressure that would force water up. But water may be found almost anywhere at depths of from twenty to five hundred feet. When the water is found, steam, horse or wind power may be used to raise it. There is a well ninety feet deep at 74 Grove street, used for E. C. Hazard & Co.'s bottling factory. This well was made by the Pierce Well Excavator Company. On the top of the five-story is building a windmill which raises the water to a tank in the upper story, whence it is distributed through the building by pipes. The power costs nothing, and so far no Croton has been needed. This company has made four wells in as many places for John H. Starin, the well known steamboat and ship owner, and also a well 150 feet deep for the Waterloo Woolen Manufacturing Company, which gives nearly 9,000 gallons of water per hour.

George Ehret and most of the lager beer brewers in this city have artesian wells, some of which yield abundantly, but it is said that the water is generally unfit for making beer and is used only for cooling and cleansing purposes. Another set back for the use of such wells came from the Croton department in the form of a great reduction in charges where vast quantities of water were used. Meters were put in and the price to consumers fixed at one cent per 100 gallons. This is considerably less than it costs to pump water from an artesian well, unless by wind power, and perhaps it is about as cheap as the windmill. At any rate, all those who have artesian wells keep their Croton pipes, just as those now using the electric lights keep their gas pipes, for no one can tell when a well may give out or an electric current fail.

Burial of the British Flag.

From the Pall Mall Gazette.

The Transvaal Argus of the 6th of August contains a long account of a ceremony which took place on the 3rd in Pretoria. A number of Englishmen there had decided to commit to the earth the emblem of their country's greatness." This was regarded as a solemn and emphatic protest against the treatment which British subjects and the British flag had received at the hands of the British Government." The funeral was arranged to take place as nearly as possible at the time it was expected that the convention would be signed. A vehicle draped with black was provided, drawn by two horses draped in sables. Inside the carriage a raised platform was placed to receive the coffin, upon the lid of which the following inscription was placed: "In loving memory of the British flag in the Transvaal, who departed this life on the 2d of August, 1881, in her fifth year. 'In other climes none knew thee but to love thee.' Resurgam." The coffin which contained the flag was placed upon the platform provided amid deepest silence and the uncovered heads of the people assembled. About 350 white people followed the hearse, and a large number of Kaffir chiefs and their retinue fell in, making the total number about 600 in the procession. On arrival at the grave the coffin was taken from the hearse and lowered into the place prepared for it "with the greatest reverence and decorum," and an oration was delivered referring to the glories associated with the British flag for a thousand years—a flag now "laid low in the dust, wounded to the heart by an unkind thrust, shorn of a portion of her honor." At the head of the grave was placed a tombstone bearing the same inscription as that on the coffin.

POPE AND PILGRIMS.

Impressive Scene in the Basilica of St. Peter's—Pope Leo's Earnestness.

Rome Letter to London Times.

To-day the Basilica of St. Peter's was closed to the public and great curtains were drawn within the iron gates of the vestibule, on the occasion of the solemn reception by Leo XIII. of the members of the Italian pilgrimage, organized, as distinctly stated, in reparation of the sacrileges committed on the night of the 13th of July, and of the insults and calumnies leveled daily against the Papacy at the public meetings held in the principal cities of Italy. The pilgrims, who come from all parts of the peninsula, led by the Patriarch of Venice and accompanied by twenty-two bishops, entered by bronze gates of the Vatican, and thence turning at the foot of the Scala Regia into the vestibule of St. Peter's, passed into the Basilica. The diplomatic body, members of the Roman nobility, members of the societies of Catholic interests, and deputations from the Roman parishes, and others to whom tickets had been granted, went in through the sacristy. By 11:30 some 20,000 people had assembled in the Basilica and the southern transept was crammed to suffocation. The Palatine Guard, numbering 200 men, marched in, formed an aisle, extending transversely across the nave of the Basilica from the chapel of the sacrament to that of St. Simon and Jude, at the end of the south transept, where the Pontifical throne had been erected, and grounded arms, with the usual clatter. Shortly afterward the Patriarch of Venice, with twenty-two pilgrim bishops, escorted by the Swiss Guards in full uniform, with their halberds, went down in procession to their places. Then passed all the members of the College of Cardinals at present in Rome, walking two and two, attended by their trainbearers and gentlemen, and escorted by Swiss Guards, and at 12 precisely Leo XIII. descended from the Vatican. As he was borne aloft into the Basilica, the Pontificial Court surrounding him, and the Noble Guards in full uniform preceding and following, the St. Peter's Choir burst forth, but their voices were immediately drowned by the ringing cheers of the thousands assembled, repeated and repeated until he reached the throne, while the myriads of handkerchiefs waved aloft seemed to cover the crowd with a floating white veil. A solemn hush then followed. The Patriarch of Venice, in full robes, advanced to the front of the throne and read the address, touching the ground with his knee each time he mentioned the Pope's name, and on his concluding Leo. XIII. rose and replied. The gravity of the Pope's words, and the earnestness with which he delivered them, made a profound impression on all who were near enough to hear him, concluding, as he did, with arms raised aloft to heaven, imploring help. To describe the enthusiastic cheers reechoing sharply through the dome, and the waving of handkerchiefs as the Pope sat down after imparting the apostolic benediction for the first time within St. Peter's, and as he was carried back to the Vatican, is simply impossible. In vain the Cameriere Segreti and the prelates raised their hands, enjoining silence, and perhaps after all they were not displeased at being disobeyed. As to the Pope himself, he was evidently deeply moved. He looked thin, worn and anxious; his face had a feverish glow, and its muscles visibly twitched as he bent low down, first on one side and then on the other, blessing the people with outstretched arm and sweeping gesture, and from time to time throwing himself back in the chair and gazing upward as if praying all the time, and he looked as if he was.

Everything passed off with perfect order, and it is only just to mention that Cardinal Jacobini, in conversation this afternoon, acknowledged in terms of warm praise that the measures taken by the government had been complete and efficiently carried out. The Republicans and anti-Clericals in the Borgo were obliged to content themselves with the innocuous counter demonstration of showering from the few windows I have already mentioned red, white and green slips of paper bearing the words, "Viva Roma, capitale d'Italia," on the pilgrims as they walked or drove past.

The pilgrims, on leaving the Church of St. Vitale this evening, were assaulted by a gang of roughs, who pelted them with stones, shouting "Assassini," "Traditori della patria," and "Down with the Vatican."

The "English Peabody."

From the Philadelphia Telegraph.

Samuel Morley, M. P., arrived in this city on Saturday in company with his son Arnold, and is staying at the Continental Hotel. Mr. Morley is a member of Parliament from Bristol, and has represented that borough for the last ten years. He is known as the "English Peabody." Mr. Morley, whose unbounded generosity is proverbial in England, is accredited with giving away, on an average, $500,000 a year. While a large portion of his ample means is bestowed on the Wesleyan Methodist Church, of which he is a member, he has for years given freely to other denominations in want, as well as to missions in all parts of the world. Many years ago, when the movement for the temporal, social and moral improvement of the agricultural laborers was started by the afterwards famous Joseph Arch, he encountered a strong opposition from men of prominence in political and social life. Almost despairing of success, he determined, as a last resource, to lay his plans before Mr. Morley and abide by his decision. The warm-hearted legislator, who, from personal observation, was aware of the wrongs to which the laborers were subject, entered heart and soul into the movement, and, at a mass-meeting held at Exeter Hall, London, he set the ball rolling by laying on the table his check for $5,000. This action, although it caused a great stir in upper-class circles, was the foundation upon which was built one of the largest and most effective labor organizations in the world. Mr. Morley has taken an active part in the movement for the disestablishment of the English Church, the settling of disputes between nations by arbitration, and the reform of the land and game laws. In appearance Mr. Morley, who is over sixty years of age, bears a close resemblance to John Bright, his philanthropic countenance being capped by a wealth of snow-white hair. He is the founder of a hosiery works at Nottingham which are the largest in the world, and the manufactory is conducted on methods and principles by which the work people derive advantages which do not usually fall to the share of English factory operatives.

Married by Mutual Consent.

From the New York Sun.

Gilbert G. Thompson, a very wealthy resident of this city, who was generally supposed to be a widower, died in the early part of September, bequeathing nearly his entire estate to his son, who at that time was traveling in Europe. When the contents of the will became known Antoinette Barker, a sister of Mr. Thompson's wife, claimed that she was legally wedded to Mr. Thompson and entitled to a dower interest in the estate. In the Surrogate's Court to-day Miss Barker testified that her sister died in July, 1864, and that six weeks afterward Mr. Thompson locked her in a room over the parlor of his residence, and, declaring his love for her, solemnly called upon God to witness that he would love, cherish and provide for her as his lawful wife until death did them part, stating at the time that he did not dare to have the ceremony made public because of the opposition of his mother. Miss Barker afterward lived with him and was introduced by him to parties, whose names were given, as his wife. Surrogate Warren gave Miss Barker a standing in court to contest the will. Should Miss Barker succeed in establishing her claims, it will affect the title to hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of property, because since 1864 Mr. Thompson, acting as a single gentleman, has conveyed many parcels of real estate.

Bad Fumes in a Church.

From the Boston Herald.

Nearly two hundred people in attendance at the forenoon service at the North Congregational Church, Lynn, yesterday had a decidedly novel experience. The services began at 10:30, and when the audience first entered the church many remarked the presence of a disagreeable odor. Rev. James L. Hill delivered his sermon, and at its conclusion was obliged to lean against the pulpit in order to stand up. The last hymn was given out, when the audience arose. This was the time when a general stupefaction occurred, and, just previous to the conclusion of the benediction, small knots of people might be seen about the church attending others in a fainting condition. Many of the congregation rushed for the air as quickly as possible. Sexton Blanchard, who was sitting in the conference-room, was about the first to become wholly stupefied. In attempting to reach the air he fell to the floor, tipping up a settee in his descent. Misses Hattie F. Baldwin and Mary M. Tucker, of the choir, fell in their places, and other persons severely afflicted were a 10-year-old lad named Cleaves, who was carried from the church limp and apparently lifeless; Florence Mansfield, Edward McKenney, Mrs. Mary N. Graham, Bertha and Florence Holden, and a young daughter of Geo. H. Williams. Miss Baldwin was quite severely afflicted with chills, but soon rallied. The ladies who were most badly affected, about seven in number, were cared for at the church parsonage, under the direction of Mrs. Hill, where proper restoratives were applied. Carriages were secured and the parties taken to their homes. Coal gas, escaping from the furnace, caused the trouble. The dampers were in proper condition, and the church was ventilated as usual; therefore the occurrence is thought decidedly strange. The furnace will be overhauled to-day.

Persecuting a Woman.

From the New York Times.

About three years ago Mrs. Anna Rodgers, a handsome and wealthy widow living in Forty-sixth street, between Eighth and Ninth avenues, New York, formed the acquaintance of a young man named Harry Marston, who became infatuated with her. They were engaged to be married, when Mrs. Rodgers found that Marston already had a wife. She then refused to have anything more to do with him, but he continued to visit her, treat her familiarly and even to insult and abuse her. To escape his persecutions she sold her house and removed to West Philadelphia, but he soon found her out and followed her. Last Saturday she moved again, taking a house at Thirty-third street and Powelton avenue, but Marston found the carman who had moved her furniture, and, following her to her new home on Monday morning, made an unceremonious entrance through a window opening on the veranda. Mrs. Rodgers was in the sitting-room on the second floor, with a servant when Marston ran in, and, snatching a self-cocking revolver which was lying on the mantel, thrust the muzzle in Mrs. Rodgers' face, and was fumbling for the trigger, when the servant screamed and threw up his arms. He then left the house, the women being too much frightened to stop him. He soon returned and made such a disturbance that a policeman was called in and he was arrested. He was given a hearing this morning and committed for trial. It is said that Marston has been blackmailing Mrs. Rodgers for years, and that he has in his possession a number of diamonds belonging to her.

Extravagant Dinners.

From the Pall Mall Gazette (London).

The dinner given by the company which intends to run the Maxim incandescent lamp in Paris was of unexampled magnificence. All the great electricians now in Paris, save the representatives of Edison, were at this feast, which took place at Bignon's. One hundred and thirty persons sat down to dinner; 129 were gentlemen. The only dinner that I can think of which equaled in magnificence the one given by the Maxim Company took place many years ago at the house of the late M. Moses Millaud. It was to inaugurate the Petit Journal. Chevet was the purveyor. His charge was 100 francs a head, and wines were not included. Three hundred persons sat down to this banquet, which, the weather being very fine, was served in M. Millaud's garden. The wines were exquisite. Of truffles there was an extravagant supply. After dinner I fell in with Mr. O'Meagher, who then represented the Times in Paris. Knowing that he went on the principle of never admiring anything, I felt curious to hear what he would say of the dinner, and asked him his opinion about it. He replied, "I am fond myself of a potato, and I was not able to get one." Truffles the other night were served as plentifully at the electric-light banquet as are the escuients for which the Times correspondent vainly looked in Hibernian farm-houses at dinner. There was a neat engraving of the Maxim lamp on the back of the menu, and its inventor, Mr. Hiram Maxim, sat opposite the chairman.

Something New in Navigation.

"Gath" in the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Yesterday a friend of mine from Indiana took me to see a wonderful ship or steamboat on the Harlem River, big enough to get on it and take a ride, which I did. It is called the buoyant propeller, and consists of a steamboat fifteen or twenty feet long, propelled on globes of air. As you draw near you see three large yellowish globes, made of sheet-iron, revolving on an axle like any other wheel. There are little flanges protruding from the globes, which are also paddle-wheels. An engine on the deck makes these two axles revolve, the front axle having only one globe wheel on it and the rear axle having two. As they revolve any leakage into the wheel is discharged at the axle. Consequently they can never fill. The inventor, a Mr. Fryer, formerly an engineer at Nashville, means to build a ship this winter for ocean service on this plan somewhere on the Hudson River, which will be 255 feet long and have state-room accommodations for 225 people. The present ship moves on globes only six feet in diameter, but the new ship is to be built on enormous globes. The theory is that such a vessel will make from twenty to forty miles an hour, and arrive being presented at every point there will be no shippage. I suppose the idea of this machine is taken from the spheres on which we live that go through the air quickly.

Flogging and Its Successor.

From the Pall Mall Gazette.

The War Office has published its substitute for flogging, and the persons who were attached to the penalty when inflicted on others will probably find much satisfaction in studying the component parts of its successor. It consists of field imprisonment No. 1 and field imprisonment No. 2. It may suffice to describe field imprisonment No. 1. Under this form of punishment the offending soldier may be kept three months tied up in straps, ropes, handcuffs, fetters, or both handcuffs and fetters. During that period he may for twenty-one days, with a day's interval every three days, be fastened, in addition to his other fastenings, to a "fixed object," so that he cannot move, for two hours a day. While this is going on he may further be dealt with as if he had been an ordinary criminal under sentence of three months' imprisonment with hard labor. The ingenious Torquemada of the War Office who has devoted his leisure and his gifts to this subject may be congratulated on the skill with which he has accumulated horrors on horror's head.

Marriageable Girls.

Woodstock (Mass.) Special to Chicago Tribune.

In order to accommodate the 800 bachelors who are said to be under the care of a single Presbyterian Superintendent of Missions in Manitoba and the Northwest, the editor of the Woodstock Sentinel purposes, with all seriousness, to get up a huge excursion of marriageable girls from Ontario to proceed early next spring to the prairie province. The enterprise is to be under proper and responsible management. The editor goes on to say there should not be much difficulty in securing the requisite number of volunteers for a really patriotic expedition of the kind. If any humanitarian feels interested in this scheme for the alleviation of the loneliness of the 800 orphans, he is invited to correspond with the office of the Sentinel. "To that end applications will be received until the 1st of April next at the office." The editor is evidently in earnest, and he will no doubt meet with sympathy from many quarters.

A DREAM.

Here—where last night she came, even she, for whom
I would so gladly live or lie down dead,
Came in the likeness of a dream and said
Some words that thrilled this desolate, ghost-thronged room—
I sit alone now in absolute gloom.
Ah! surely on her breast was leaned my head,
Ah! surely on my mouth her kiss was shed
And all my life broke into scent and bloom.
Give thanks, heart, for thy rootless flower of bliss,
Nor think the gods severe though thus they seem,
Though thou hast much to bear and much to miss,
Whilst thou thy nights and days to be canst deem
One thing, and that thing veritably this—
The imperishable memory of a dream.

A CATTLE KING'S KINGDOM.

A Hundred Thousand Acres Stretching for Twenty-Two Miles.

West Las Animas (Col.) Cor. Denver Republican.

Thinking that something of interest might be written concerning a representative cattle ranch in the Arkansas Valley, your correspondent accepted an invitation extended to him by the largest individual cattle owner now living in Bent county, to visit his thoroughbred breeding ranch, at Prowers' Station, twenty-seven miles east of West Las Animas.

The sun had not yet risen and the moon still shone when I left the train and found myself at Powers'. A large stone barn, corrals, a windmill, a neat stone house, a newer house of the same material, not yet finished, both surrounded by a regularly planted grove of young cottonwoods—these were the home improvements on one of the largest cattle ranches in the State.

An early morning ride had given one a keen appetite, and a good ranch breakfast, with its real tenderloin steaks and delicious old-fashioned gravy, was as keenly enjoyed. The morning meal finished, in company with the owner I visited the short-horn herd, which still stood in the corral. In this there are forty thoroughbred short-horn cattle—bulls, heifers and cows. These are bred with the greatest care, and from them each year a number of thoroughbred bulls are turned out that sell, before they are one year old, at all the way from $100 to $300 each. Besides this herd of thoroughbred cattle which is kept at home, the same gentleman has on the range in the main body of his cattle a large number of thoroughbred and high grade bulls. A few miles further up the river he has another fine stock ranch devoted to the breeding of pure Herefords. His herd of thoroughbreds in this variety numbers thirty-four head.

These two ranches, and several others owned by the same gentleman, all making up a river frontage of eighteen miles, and including a number of very productive meadows, are situated on the south side of the Arkansas, and all are under fence. Directly opposite these, beginning at Fort Lyon and reaching down the river a distance of twenty-two miles and extending back far enough to include an expanse of 80,000 acres, is another pasture under fence, the titles for which are in the same name. Here then are forty miles of water front and 100,000 acres of pasture under fence, all owned by one man. The fencing on these ranches will sum up over 100 miles. Northward to and even beyond the Kansas Pacific, and southward to Cimarron and beyond, into the Pan Handle of Texas, graze his cattle, more than 12,000 in number. Already this autumn he has shipped 1,100 fat steers, whose average weight has not been less than 1,200 pounds, and he will yet ship from 500 to 700 more quite as good. His sale of cattle this year will reach more than $60,000, perhaps $75,000.

This is but one ranch. There are a number of others on the Arkansas, between Pueblo and the State line, that are but little less in extent.

Sarah Bernhardt in America.

Paris Correspondence New York Sun.

Marie Colombier, actress, Bohemian, and a woman of considerable wit, has taken advantage of the revival of Parisian life to publish her diary of the American tour of Sarah Bernhardt, whom she accompanied in a professional capacity. It is really a curious record of nomad artistic life. Her conclusion is that America is a fine country seen from afar, and that Sarah Bernhardt and herself are glad they are back again in France. Miss Bernhardt starts from Havre with the conviction that she is going to gain a million, and at the same time that the Americans are going to come to see her as they would go to see a "white elephant or a tricephalous calf." The expression is her own.

Speaking of Clara Morris' performance in "Alixe," she says:

No, it is impossible for Parisians to figure to themselves the American star. Imagine a woman who could give points to Sarah for leanness, angular, having no longer any age, and who can never have had any beauty—youth perhaps, but a long time ago. Her mouth is a black hole. Her teeth look like cloves stuck in sealing-wax. And people pretend that America is a country of dentists! Shriveled up, mummified, she wears a cherub wig. At the dramatic moments she sobs with her head in her hands, and you can see her long fingers adjusting the locks of her hempen-blonde hair.

In short, Marie Colombier pronounces Clara Morris to be without a spark of genius. "She does not know how to talk or how to walk. A strolling mountebank."

Marie Colombier and her companions are inexaustible in their unfavorable criticisms of America and Americans.

Here is her description of the capital:

Washington is a dull, dead-alive town, with broad streets. Happily, the European residents there form a society superior to that of any other town in America. [Listen to that, ye Bostonians, who said in your enthusiasm, "Come again, Marie!" At least Marie in her book says that you did.] The monuments, and they are numerous, resemble Savoy cakes; the palace of Congress and that of the President are models of bad taste, and all the people of the country are very proud of them. The ladies of Washington are generally pretty, although, like their sisters of New York and Boston, they have not yet been able to learn from their French dressmakers to wear the Paris fashions as they should be worn.

The tour of Sarah Bernhardt, which began so joyfully and brilliantly, ended, as the reader will remember, in the most commonplace manner, and amid general indifference. She had come to earn money and not to win glory, and many a page in Marie Colombier's book shows in what a slipshod way the performances were given. Well, how much money did she earn? According to her companion's account she earned 920,000 francs ($177,560) in 166 representations. Out of this Jarret took 100,000 francs ($19,300); expenses amounted to 200,000 francs ($38,600); her creditors and lawyers in Paris took 400,000 francs ($77,200); and she brought home with her a check on the Credit Lyonnais for 220,000 francs ($42,500).

Where Milk is Pure.

From the New York Times.

A letter from the American Consul-General at Frankfort relates how the difficulty of getting pure milk is dealt with in that city. A police inspection had already been established, the galactometer being also in common family use. Out of 300 analyses made in 1880 in Manheim 245 showed impurity, and 650 reichmarks were collected in a single month as fines at the rate of 1 mark for each 1 per cent of water added. But as a means of coping with not only this difficulty, but with unevenness of quality, injury from carrying, dirt, and disease in the animals, the Frankfurter Milchkind Anstalt was established four years ago, largely by the medical profession. It is managed by a commission of three physicians, one veterinary surgeon, and one chemist. The cows kept are of two breeds only, carefully selected; they are kept constantly in stalls, fed with care and perfect uniformity on dry food, with every attention given to ventilation and cleanliness. To insure uniformity of quality and dilute the power for harm of a single animal which might possibly become unhealthy, the milk of every ten different animals is poured in together. The milk for delivery is put into quart bottles, stopped with wax and sealed with the Anstalt seal. So strict is the cleanliness required that the empty bottles are washed twice a week in a weak solution of soda and the corks (which are only used a short time) are boiled in a soda solution after each use. Spring wagons, with apertures for ventilation, are used for delivery; in hot weather they are covered with cocoa mats, and no wagon must take out more than can be delivered in three and one-half hours. The chemist tests one bottle daily. The Anstalt milk retails for 50 pfennigs (about 12 cents) per quart, and it is claimed to have actually diminished the number of nurses at Frankfort and to have produced surprisingly good results otherwise. These are so noticeable that a benevolent movement has been started to provide the Anstalt milk at half-price for all infants supported by artificial nourishment during the first year of their existence. The Frankfort plan is thus simply a milk-producing concern on a large and intelligent scale, and it is obviously useless to discover and condemn poor milk without providing better. Mortality among human sucklings, greatest where poverty and ignorance are greatest, might doubtless be mitigated by a plan of this sort, and it would be of commercial value as well.

Vennor's Weather for November.

From Vennor's Almanac.

November, 1881, will probably enter cold and decidedly wet, but this condition will suddenly, after the first week, give place to open and genial weather again nearly everywhere, with a disappearance of frosts even in Northern New York and Canada for a marked period. We may expect some of the finest—at any rate, most enjoyable—weather of the season during this month at New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Washington, and in Canada our "Indian summer." In western sections the fore and latter portions of the month are likely to be disagreeable, but I do not anticipate much trouble from snowfalls or blockades this winter until December. Should such occur, however, it will likely be found that the dates of the disturbances will be nearly the same as those of the November of 1880. Possibly there may be a period of unusual warmth in proximity to the middle of the month. This month will be marked by periods of balmy and brilliant autumn weather, as in the year 1877.

A Poet Parnell.

From the New York Sun.

The poet Thomas Parnell, who has recently come into notoriety as an ancestor of the great Land Leaguer, though born in Dublin in 1679, was descended from a family for some centuries established at Congleton, Cheshire, from which the family afterward took its title, and was a Cromwellian, thoroughly English in feeling. He was a master of arts in Dublin University, was ordained by dispensation under the canonical age and made Archdeacon of Clagher. Though holding the Irish benefice and subsequently receiving a living of £400 in Ireland, he was an absentee and confined his preachings to London, and was a contributor to the Spectator and the Guardian. He was very convivial in his habits, and died suddenly at Chester on his way to Ireland when only 38.

THE finest stables and stock farms of the whole country, such as those of Mr. Calvin M. Priest, of New York; Mr. Mike Goodin, of Belmont Park, Pa.; Aristides Welch, Esq., of Eastenheim, near Philadelphia, and others we could name, are always provided with St. Jacobs Oil—the horse's best physician.

CONDENSED TELEGRAMS.

SHOOTING OF M. C. BROWN.

The Noble Act of a Brave Man Jeopardizes His Life.

Mr. T. H. Peabody, the attorney whose office M. C. Brown occupied, furnishes the following relating to the shooting of the attorney taken from a letter of Mrs. Mary A. Wood, 1901 Chouteau avenue, with whom Mr. Brown rooms, giving full particulars as to the tragedy:

"The way he got shot was this: He was coming from Cuba to Franklin on his way to Herman, Mo., (to attend to his land business). On the train was a mule trader of St. Louis, named Seifert or Seifred, who was drunk and flourishing a revolver. An old man sitting in front was singing for the amusement of a few young men who were laughing. Seifert concluded to run the train to suit himself and yelled out that the old man had no right on the train and he should shoot him, cocked his revolver and ran towards the old man and aimed at his breast. Brown sprang up, caught Seifert's arm and begged him not to harm the poor old man. Seifort cursed Brown, and asked what he had to do with it, and stuck the revolver right at Brown's breast. The latter knocked it aside and it went off, barming no one. He cocked it again and aimed at Brown, and the latter grasped the revolver with both hands, trying to take it away, and succeeded in turning the muzzle downward, but the ruffian succeeded in firing, the bullet passing through Brown's left thigh some two inches below the groin. Brown then knocked Seifert down and he was arrested and it is reported to be secured in Crawford county. The train left Brown at Leesburg. The physician there probing, found the ball had gone in on the inside the thigh and went round and lodged against the bone on the outside. The ball was extracted in a flattened condition. It came within an inch of the main artery, so you see how near Brown came to loosing his life in protecting a poor old man from this drunken brute. I hope to be able to get him home to St. Louis in a few days; yet it is doubtful."

Knights of Honor.

Anchor Lodge, No. 144, K. of H., gave a complimentary musical and literary entertainment and supper to their friends last evening in their new hall, corner of Exchange street and Broadway. Mr. Gus Koch, as master of ceremonies, made every one feel at home and presided in an able manner. A choice programme of literary and musical gems were offered and admirably rendered. At the conclusion of the exercises the anteroom doors were thrown open and the brother Knights and their ladies were invited to partake of a bountiful repast elegantly served. Full justice was done to the tempting viands and a very pleasant hour was spent in social greetings and conversation.

The affair throughout was admirably managed, and reflected credit on the committee of arrangements. Delegates were present from Benton, Bremen, Seymour and Olive Branch Lodges, headed by their various Dictators, and all expressed themselves as well pleased with their hospitable reception and entertainment, and departed at a late hour, breathing hearty good wishes for the future prosperity of Anchor Lodge.

Get the Genuine Article.—The great popularity of "Wilbor's Compound of Cod-Liver Oil and Lime" has induced some unprincipled persons to attempt to palm off a similar article of their own manufacture; but any person who is suffering from Coughs, Colds, or Consumption should be careful where they purchase this article. It requires no puffing. The results of its use are its best recommendations; and the proprietor has ample evidence on file of its extraordinary success in pulmonary complaints. The Phosphate of Lime possesses a most marvelous healing power, as combined with the pure Cod-Liver Oil by Dr. Wilbor. It is prescribed by the medical faculty. Sold by A. B. The people of Carondelet are still protesting against the location of the dump at the foot of Catalan street, and threaten to sue out an injunction.

Phil McHolland has been arrested charged with being the man who has despoiled several residents of the Lafayette Park neighborhood during the last couple of weeks.

The School Board committees on course of study and on supplies were advertised to meet yesterday afternoon, but no quorum appeared and both meetings were called off.

The foremen of the fire companies are to be furnished with second fire alarm keys and will be authorized to turn on second alarms in the absence of the Chief or his assistants.

The Health Commissioner is having the female waiting-room at the Dispensary boarded up and fitted out as a waiting-room for small-box patients in transit to the Small-pox Hospital.

A mutiny took place on the steamer E. W. Cole at Mound Landing. The negro roustabouts attempted to mob M. W. Borden, the mate, and he defended himself, killing one of the mutineers.

A consular agent is hunting for Alexander Markwald, alias Menrensteyn. His uncle has died in Berlin, leaving him a fortune, which will yield him an annual income of 1,800 marks per annum.

Another small-pox patient turned up yesterday in the person of Alfred Landgraff, a stranger in the city. He is a German, and arrived in town yesterday. He was sent to the Small-pox Hospital.

The Humane Society is preparing a letter to the Mayor of Louisville, calling his attention to the dog fight in that town lately and asking him to suppress disgusting exhibitions of this kind in the future.

The stockholders of the Sectional Dock Company met at the office on Lesperance street yesterday and elected officers for the ensuing year. Lewis Glenn was chosen president and W. P. Morse secretary, treasurer and general manager.

A young Englishman, who claims to be the son of a Manchester clergyman, called at the Mayor's office yesterday and asked for relief. He said he arrived at New Orleans a couple of months ago with £200 in his pocket, which he has run through.

Gen. Stevenson, the assessor and Collector of Water Rates, is thinking of asking for the restoration of the old rates on dramshops, small residences, and on sprinkling, as the receipts last month were nearly $5,000 less than for the same month last year.

Frank Duffy, a drunken laborer, while temporarily under the jim-jams last night, jumped into Mr. Spelbrink's grocery wagon, dashed down Washington avenue in a wild chase and finally pulled up in an embankment into which he had driven the rig. Duffy was so badly hurt that he was sent to the City Hospital.

Engine No. 4, of the Narrow Gauge, exploded a cylinder while running out near Union avenue at 6 p. m. yesterday. The train was delayed nearly two hours. No one was injured. The engine will be under repair for several days, which will cause a material change in the running of the trains on the road.

John Sweeney, a teamster, deposited a load of freight at the Iron Mountain Depot and drove away with a case of boots still on the wagon. Officer Mills arrested him and locked him up at the Third District. Sweeney says he either forgot to unload the boots or somebody put them on his wagon after he started away.

The directors and friends of the Home of the Friendless met last night at Central Presbyterian Church. The secretary, Mr. Adams, presented his report, showing that the year commenced with sixty-two inmates at the Home, fourteen had been admitted during the year, there were four deaths, and two persons left voluntarily. The report of Mrs. S. A. Copp, the treasurer, showed the receipts of the year to be $14,000 and the expenditures $12,000. Remarks were made by Rev. Dr. Felton and Rev. Mr. Marshall.

Henry Schaller, a young man who boards with Beckman, the Fourth street grocer, leaped into the river at the foot of Market street, just after dark last night. Capt. Rogers and Henry Parker, a watchman on the levee, fished him out. He was taken to the Chestnut Street Station, when he said he owed Beckman four months' rent and that he wanted to die anyhow. Mr. Beckman came to see him and afterwards said that Schaller was a compositor on the Westliche Post, was earning $25 a week, and that he had been drinking hard of late.

The Citizens' Committee met last night at the Lindell, M. W. Willis in the chair. The sub-committee on gas was instructed to call on the Mayor again. Dr. James H. McLean laid before the body a plat of an elevated railway on the levee, to contain projections into the river for the benefit of boats. Each railroad is to have a depot for freight and passengers, to connect with lines running west and south. Dr. McLean stated that such a road would create a system of warehouses along the levee, and would abolish the Union Depot, which lost to the city at least $9,000,000 a year, as passengers who once went through that rickety tumbledown structure never wanted to stay in the city. A committee was appointed to lay the matter before the public.

The Republican members of the School Board held a caucus in parlor 22 at the Laclede yesterday. The principal object was to decide who should be the next president of the board. The choice seemed to lie between Dr. Hill and Mr. Chas. Scudder, who has been lately elected from the Eighteenth Ward. Among those present last night were Messrs. Plate, Schubert, Koenig, Barth, Hummel, Busch, Foerstel, Goerlich, Bouton, Bormueller, Dailey, Bodemann and Gerber. Mr. Schubert held that politics ought to control the actions of the School Board. The Republicans held the majority and it was their duty to elect a Republican presiding officer if the man was fitted for the position. Mr. Dailey favored a Republican presiding officer and wanted important committees like those on building and teachers controlled by the majority. He finally presented a resolution that it was the sense of the caucus that the board should be organized by the Republican members, and that the meeting favored the plan that the president and vice-president and the chairmanships of important committees be filled by Republicans. The resolution caused much opposition, several gentlemen refusing to be bound by it, and it was finally withdrawn.

CAPT. J. LAWRENCE CARTER, of the New Orleans packet U. P. Schenck, yesterday celebrated the forty-second anniversary of his advent on the river. On November 2, 1839, he left Cincinnati on a produce flatboat, commanded by his venerable father, for New Orleans. There was not over from 30 to 33 inches of water on Gunpowder Bar, and the boat was detained a week at Patriot by low water, when it left drawing 3 feet. Capt. Carter flatboated as a hand and pilot seven years before he engaged in steamboating. He piloted produce boats to New Orleans for Col. Amos Shinkle and Capt. Chas. Shinkle. Capt. Carter's venerable father, in his ninetieth year, is still ill on his farm in Clermont county, Ohio, with no indications of a permanent recovery.

THE New York Banker and Broker: The promoters of the St. Louis Convention, although they invited only those "immediately" interested, would be astonished at the great favor any practical scheme for improving the chief waterway of the Nation would meet among the solid people of New York City, including even railroad owners. New York, as the financial and commercial center of the country, would no more hinder interior development than London would check the shipping of Liverpool. It is by no means necessary that all New York warehouses should be within the city limits, or that all the commodities our merchants deal in or bankers advance on should go through the city. The prosperity of the country is the real prosperity of New York, and this is the first article in the business faith of our representative business men. They desire nothing so much at present as the development of the South or the Mississippi Valley, and the boundless resources of the tributary region. We have no hesitancy in saying that a business-like scheme for improving the Mississippi on the most complete scale by a proper co-operation of local and national effort would get as strong support in New York as in St. Louis or New Orleans. Let the work be done as the Pacific roads were built, sans Credit Mobilier, but at the contiguous property, the shipping, etc., or those interests which will be most immediately and largely benefited are in private hands instead of public, as in the case of the Pacific roads, let an equitable system of assessments and tolls be established. New York will certainly sustain such a movement, but the whole country, except only the immediate interests mentioned, will probably object to a mere subsidizing of those interests.

As a rule the New Jersey Bank Director does not direct. He simply confides in his cashier.

GOV. CRITTENDEN will perform the most solemn and creditable act of his administration next Saturday evening. He will celebrate his silver wedding.

IT is the railway enemies of JAY GOULD who are depended on to build another bridge across the Mississippi at this point. JAY has a way of placating his enemies when they become troublesome.

MR. BLAINE is a man whose opinions are generally well grounded. He thinks that he will retire from the Cabinet at an early day. This view, we may remark, is shared by a large number of people.

IT is altogether likely that GRANT will never be elected President again in this country, but he will certainly enjoy the usufruct of one-third of ARTHUR'S Administration. There would be no impropriety in calling it his third term.

IN the United States Circuit Court for New York yesterday Mr. SAM. J. TILDEN was permanently enjoined from disposing of his stock in certain mines. An injunction that would keep him out of politics would be worth a good deal to the Democratic party.

NEARLY all the St. Louis newspapers are showing great disrespect for our "Model Fire Department" now. The Globe-Democrat opens its columns this morning to a Boston fireman who criticises our system with barbaric severity. These impudent and presumptuous "foreigners" should be crushed.

IT may interest some people to know that the Cincinnati Gazette has brought its revision of the Vicksburg campaign down to the verge of the fortifications of the beleaguered town. Things are growing exciting and if the interest is sustained for the next week or two the price of breadstuffs may be affected.

IN removing the St. Louis Pension Agency out to Kansas the new Administration has struck a fatal blow at the Republican party of Missouri. We need at least a thousand new Federal offices now to keep the party together, and this sudden wiping out of one looks like a studied effort to eradicate the organization.

A TERRIBLE small-pox epidemic is raging in Stearns county, Minnesota. Missionaries should be sent into this benighted region to tell the poor people of the blessed discovery made some years ago by Dr. JENNER. We pay men to go to Africa to enlighten people who know more than the citizens of some section of Minnesota.

A HEROIC attempt is being made in Washington to set aside the information on which the Star Route thieves have been arraigned. The rascals wish to be indicted by a Grand Jury in a formal way. As they will be called upon to pay for the entertainment in the end we trust that they will be allowed everything that the bill of fare calls for.

RECENTLY the Republican made the announcement that "Greenbacks are taxable, just as coin or any money is." The Indianapolis Journal, edited by an ex-Treasury official, professes to be startled by this piece of news, and wants the authority quoted. The Republican has a magnificent stock of misinformation on hand, and it would be a difficult matter for it to tell where it found this chunk of ignorance. People who are well posted do not pay taxes on greenbacks, nor do they take the Republican.

IT is really very discouraging to be told that there is no money in the Bank of England to the credit of the defunct Southern Confederacy. We could never understand why the gentlemen who were floundering in the last ditch would permit the Confederacy to go out of business with a bank balance of $15,000,000 in their favor. Still the capitalists who are buying up Confederate bonds will be pleased to learn that these securities are in high favor with the trunk-makers. They make much more durable lining than ordinary newspapers.

THE Commissioner of Internal Revenue has discovered that the New York brewers use sugar, cornmeal, rice and glucose in starting quantities in the manufacture of beer, very little hops being used anywhere and some of the breweries not having as much as a single hop beneath their roofs from one end of the year to the other. Malt, too, holds an insignificant place among the ingredients of the foaming lager. The proportion in some establishments is one bushel of malt to two pounds of cornmeal and one pound of glucose, and this seems to be a pretty fair average all around. One brewery uses 600 pounds of glucose to every 165 bushels of malt. It is not expected that this information will strike consternation into the hearts of Gambrinus' followers, because the man who drinks beer generally does not care what it is made out of, and would as willingly tackle a decoction of sulphuric acid and old boots, if it were amber-colored and had a foam on it, as if he knew it to be the best brewing of the most honest beer-provider in the country.

JOHN C. ZENZ, a Chicago mechanical engineer, has brought suit against Miss Louise Frenzel, of Indianapolis, for breach of promise. He claims to have been engaged to the young lady for two years, during which time he received and wrote in reply a bushel of love letters. Last September they were to have been married, but LOUISE waited until JOHN got his boiled shirt and red necktie on, and then told him she didn't care to wed. JOHN now asks for $10,000 damages. He does not specify what he wants the $10,000 for, other than because his heart has been wounded and his feelings lacerated. Still we think he has not asked enough. Anybody who has hung around a girl for two years, giving her chewing-gum and quince seed to paste down her "Montagues," besides running a risk of having the bosom ripped out of his pants by a paternal boot or a family bull-dog, is too good and loving to be turned out in the cold world with no one to love him and none to caress, and if his feelings have been hurt at all, or his heart bleeds, $10 000 is not a marker to what he is entitled to in the way of damages.

A FLOURISHING banking institution in Kansas City, known as the Union Avenue Bank, has closed its doors under most distressing circumstances. This disaster, following close upon the heels of the Newark calamity, has given the financial markets of the country a terrible strain. The Kansas City bank was originally started on a capital of $5,000 borrowed from a Michigan capitalist. As soon as the concern spread its sails the two sole stockholders drew out this capital and replaced it with their individual notes, not worth a continental dam. The son of the cashier, being a dissolute and frisky young man and disposed to cut capers like the sons of most rich men, forged a draft on the concern for $600 and knocked the enterprise into smithereens. The Nabob father chased his giddy son into the far West, but, not being able to find him, returned and hung up his shutters. The Union Avenue Bank of Kansas City seems to have been organized with a special reference to making it pleasant for depositors and we cannot contemplate its early collapse without a tendency to shed a tear or two. Behold the ruin that a wayward son hath wrought!

THERE is a strong probability that Gen. BE ALL will be made Secretary of the Navy in December. He is a nice, mild-mannered, white-haired old man, very much after the style of BORIE. As he has spent all his life on land and doesn't know a frigate from a pinnace he is eminently fitted for the management of our Navy, because we have no Navy to manage. He made his money in California, and has lived in Washington for several years, taking things easy. GRANT always boards with him when he is in Washington, and, of course, he regards the old gentleman as a person eminently qualified to fill all the Cabinet positions at one time. People who furnish GRANT with good dinners have the appearance of benign statesmen in the eyes of that appreciative dead-head, and we are told that every man in the GRANT gang is boring the President now in behalf of BEALL. When GRANT was sputtering like a bad smelling tallow dip in the last years of his chief magistracy he appointed BEALL as Minister to Austria. The old gentleman created less sensation at Vienna than a cricket in a sheep pasture, but his failure as a diplomat was probably due to the fact that his cook had scarcely time to unlimber the kitchen apparatus before he was recalled. The appointment of BEALL to the head of the Navy would be an announcement to the country that men who present gifts and get up dinners for GRANT are still in demand. The honorable MYCENAS would make as good a figure-head for our skeleton Navy as some of the other rare compounds of white whiskers and broadcloth that we have had during the past twelve years, but he should be satisfied with the custodianship of GRANT'S Arabian stallions.

A MOST shameless, outrageous and uncalled-for attempt is being made by certain Republican members of the School Board to introduce the FILLEY principle into the Public Schools and make these sacred institutions mere tenders to the Republican spoils system. A caucus of some of these patriots was held at the Lindell Hotel last night for the purpose of organizing a movement to oust President JUDSON from the chair because he happens to be a mild type of Democrat. At the late election there was an effort made to place the schools above party. As a result the Republicans elected nine of the ten new members, mainly because Democrats threw aside politics and voted for men having the best standing and character. It is now proposed to subvert this idea, and Judge DAILEY at the meeting last night showed a greed for power and pickings that would have discredited the hungriest ward bummer in the city. He boldly declared in favor of a Republican President for the Board, Republican chairmen for the committees and Republican teachers for the schools. He demonstrated how 922 teachers, noble struggling women, could be made to control 2,000 votes in St. Louis and how the jobs and contracts within the province of the Board could be made to control thousands more. Mr. DAILEY succeeded in rushing through a resolution declaring it to be the sense of the meeting that the School Board should be reorganized by the election of a Republican President and Vice-President and the appointment of Republicans to the heads of the chief committees. We do not believe that the majority of Republican members of the board will be held to this scheme, which can have no other effect than to degrade the Public Schools into the lowest order of partisan machine. Such men as SCUDDER and BUSH and PLATE—men elected by tax-payers irrespective of party—will certainly not lend themselves to this contemptible business. The POST-DISPATCH has labored to place the Public Schools in the hands of men of integrity and character regardless of party predilections. At the last election we rendered some service, as we thought, in this direction. We warn Mr. DAILEY and his hoggish followers that an enlightened public will hold his party responsible if the schools are demoralized by the introduction of the dirty system of partisanism that is proposed. The time is not propitious for making a certificate of loyalty to the Republican party a condition precedent to an engagement to teach the children of the taxpayers of St. Louis. Mr. DAILEY is preparing to make a gigantic mistake.

PERSONAL.

—Bret Harte parts his hair in the middle now, and "wears the most British of coats."

—Senator Edmunds, who is now in Washington, is writing a magazine paper on the political aspect of Mormonism.

—Bayard Taylor's father and mother, who have been man and wife for sixty-seven years, are still living and in good health.

—Queen Victoria has now reigned longer than did Queen Elizabeth. On October 25 she completed the forty-fifth year of her reign, which was the term of Elizabeth's.

—Minister Lowell is described by a London correspondent as slender, elegant, white bearded, with a peculiarly American face, showing the sensitive delicacy of the poetical temperament, vivified by the intellectual vigor of one to whom life is real and earnest.

—One critic in New York was not oppressed by Signor Rossi's reputation. The Tribune concludes a review of his first performance with the conjecture that "his rank is about level with that of Mr. J. B Studley. Mr. Joseph Procter or Mr. L. R. Shewell on our own stage—though either of these actors would present a much truer Shakspearean Othello."

There is hardly a clerk, watchman, messenger or employe about the White House who has not secured some article used by the late President. Steward Crump has the mattress upon which he lay when first brought from the Potomac station until changed to a smaller bed. The mattress is stained all through with the blood of the President. The pen used by the President in writing his last letter to his mother is also in the possession of Steward Crump. Some of the messengers have fans used by the President, the time memorandum showing the hours for giving his medicines, glasses from which he drank water, and other little articles. They will all be for sale in due time.

A Lawyer's Opinion.

ST. LOUIS, November 3, 1881.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Your reference recently to the ruling of the United States Circuit Court in one of the "election cases"—United States vs. Cahill—as a "hair-splitting difference," does injustice to the able opinion of the court. The principle on which the demurrer rested, which the court sustained, was that neither Federal courts nor laws could control or regulate any State election except so far as concerns the election of Congressmen. In applying this principle the court held the statement "a lawful election at which a Representative in Congress, etc., was voted for," was not a sufficiently clear allegation of an "election for Representative in Congress" to bring the case within the Federal laws. Votes might be cast for Congressmen when the election in question was lawfully held "for some other purpose over which the Federal Government had no control and with which it had no right to intertere." The court further held the indictment bad in failing to show that the voter who was supposed to be intimidated "offered, or proposed, or was about to vote for, or was qualified to vote for a Representative in Congress." The gist of the opinion is in this sentence: "It is clear that no Federal statute can interfere with voters, except at an election for Representative in Congress, and then only as to their protection in voting for a Representative in Congress."

Of the importance of this declaration of law you can form your own judgment. It certainly is sufficient to relieve the opinion from such comments as that it was a "hair-splitting" one. Having been counsel for defendant, I feel enough interest in the case to send you this memorandum on the subject for such use as you think just. SHEPARD BARCLAY.

Those Williams Boys.

ST. LOUIS, November 3.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Seeing in your Wednesday issue a description of the two men arrested, supposed to be the Williams brothers, I take the liberty to inform you that they are not the Williamses, as I have seen them some years ago, before they were outlaws, and can give some points as to their appearance. Henry, the oldest, can't possibly be more than 31 years of age. He had three of his fingers sawed off in a saw-mill at Metropolis, Ill., when a boy, as I lived there at the time and remember perfectly. He had brown hair.

Monzo, the younger of the brothers, had, when I saw him at twelve years of age, red hair, blue eyes and very freckled skin. Williams is no alias, but their real name. They began their career by robbing a drug store in Metropolis, "just for the fun of the thing." Their father is a physician, and their mother a good Christian woman.

By publishing the above you will oblige a subscriber, and perhaps free two innocent men. SUBSCRIBER.

Never Lost a Cent.

ST. LOUIS, November 4.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In reply to one of the tax-payers (a nom de plume which sometimes covers a multitude of sins) I would say that the School Board never lost one cent by the "gold brick" business. EX-SCHOOL DIRECTOR.

English's Newspapers.

From the Cincinnati Commercial.

The vitality of Bill English appears in two newspapers, both daily, one run as a very Republican, the other as a fiercely Democratic journal. The two are scented from the same pot.

In Due Time.

From the Washington Post.

President Arthur hasn't had time to do much for Ohio people yet, but as soon as he definitely locates his cemeteries the Buckeyes will hear from him.

Successful in Politics.

From the Atlanta Constitution.

In the history of the world perhaps there never was as triumphantly successful a politician as Chas. J. Guiteau.

Grant On Top Again.

From the Philadelphia Times.

It is apparent to the naked eye that the Grant crowd is rapidly resuming business at the old stand.

"APPROVED, C. I. FILLEY."

All the Office-Seekers in Missouri Must Have This Indorsement.

Senator Vest Discourses on a Variety of Political Themes.

Democratic Prospects — David Davis' Bargain—Improvement of the Mississippi—Conkling Et Al.

Senator George Vest, of Missouri, arrived in the city last night and is stopping at the Southern. He is looking rather fatigued with the session work at Washington, and he seems much grayer than he was a year age, but still he is, as usual, a brilliant talker on his pet theme, and an enthusiast for everything Missourian. A reporter met him in the rotunda this morning and was soon deep with him in the story of recent events in Washington.

"Of course Filley has the Missouri patronage?"

"Yes; Missouri is his private and personal property now. Why, I have seen applications on file in the departments with 'Approved, C. I Filley' written across them as though he were President of the United States."

"These be the halcyon days for the 306?"

"Indeed they are. What Filley is in Missouri Miller is in Kentucky, and the other members of the legion in every other State. Whenever a man can be found that was faithful in Chicago, he is rewarded with everything he asks."

"Logan then is all-powerful."

"Yes. Logan is the mouthpiece of the Administration. He represents the Stalwart idea."

"Will Filley get the Postmaster-Generalship?"

"I cannot say—the power is all in the hands of the extreme Stalwarts and they will do as they choose. They are preparing for 1884, and those men who will be most useful then are being taken care of now."

"Do you believe that Grant will come before the convention in 1884?"

"No, I do not. Grant is getting old now and he wants the real control of power rather than the fuss and annoyance of active politics. He will remain the power behind the throne, the deus ex machina, and Arthur or Conkling will do what he tells them. I don't believe that he will ever come before the country as a candidate again."

"Then who will lead the Republicans?"

"Arthur is probably in line for a renomination, but if he finds it inexpedient then the whole forces of the Administration will be thrown into the scales for Conkling. It is felt that his hour is at hand. Arthur is a shrewd politician, and the machine is being brought into working order rapidly all over the country."

"What do you think Conkling can do with New York?"

"Of course Conkling has to fight against the consequences of his stupendous blunder in resigning. It may take him some time to retrieve his position, but Conkling takes to politics as naturally as a fish to water, and he will win back all he has lost. There is no doubt that the fighting element in New York politics is heartily with Conkling, and with this as a basis to trade upon he will regain everything. Conkling is first, last and all the time a trader."

"What do you think of the pledges he received from the Albany Legislature before he resigned?"

"Legislatures are only human. Conkling sent Platt up to Albany to sound the members, and he found them all right. With Conkling in power those ward politicians saw the thing from a different point of view than that in which it appeared when Conkling was out of power and Blaine was bearing down upon him with all the weight of the Administration. Had Garfield died while the fight was going on at Albany the result there would have been very different. It was not the New York opposition that beat Conkling, but the heavy hand of Jim Blaine."

"But the machine is now in motion everywhere?"

"Oh, yes. Take Green B. Raum for instance, the Civil service reformer. He has assessed every employe of the Revenue Service $3 for campaign purposes in Virginia, which is pretty good for a reformer."

"Schurz seems to have sunk completely under the surface in New York?"

"Schurz seems to have gone to join George William Curtis and that class of gentlemen. He doesn't exert very much influence just now."

"Will he be felt in the campaign of 1884?"

"I think so. He will be one of the elements of the anti-Stalwart fight, and there is no use in denying that Schurz wields a most powerful influence upon the German vote."

"What are going to be the chances for Democratic success?"

"I think they are excellent. Analyze the last vote and you will see that, despite the fact that national banks, the great corporations and the press were against us, the United States as a whole is Democratic. Before this condition of things politicians will not be able to do more than to delay the popular will. As far as the white vote went, we had an overwhelming majority of it. The most hopeful sign of the times is that Democrats at Washington are becoming at once more prudent and more aggressive. Hitherto we have let the Republicans map out our campaigns for us and taken the positions they have forced us into. Hereafter I think this will be changed, and our promise of success is in the new disposition of the party leaders at Washington."

"What do you think of David Davis?"

"He is a weak, vain old man who is anxious to hold that bauble of the temporary chairmanship—of the Presidential succession—at any cost. He gave us plainly to understand that he was anxious for us to nominate him before he went over to the Republicans, but we did not want him. It was a plain case of bargain and sale if ever there was one. Of course they did not say to him in so many words, 'If we give you this will you do this?' but the understanding would not be any the clearer if that had been said. I am thoroughly satisfied with our position in the Senate, for we are strong enough to dispose of any legislation we do not like. The Democratic party holds a veto power on the laws of this country which can be used to advantage."

"What is going to become of Blaine?"

"Of course the disruption of the Republican party will continue. This is a life and death fight between Blaine and the Stalwarts. Nothing but complete victory on one side and utter destruction on the other will ever satisfy the enemies. Now Blaine's great difficulty is his health. I saw him the other day and he looked feebler than before. He seems to be wearing out. If his health is good, Blaine will win. With all his faculties about him and in play, Blaine is more than a match for the Administration, even giving it the odds of the machine."

"We rather expected you to be at the River Convention."

"I was anxious to come, but I could not get a pair, and my attendance in Washington was very necessary at the time. I am heartily in sympathy with the improvement of the Mississippi River, however, and I intend to introduce a bill at the opening of the Senate appropriating $5,000,000 for its improvement under the plans proposed by the River Commission. It is the only effective method of breaking up the railroad monopolies."

"What do you think of the work of the convention?"

"I have not yet seen very full reports of its work, but I know this, that it has done good work in opening up an agitation on the question throughout the valley which will awaken the people to an idea of what they want. Politicians are merely the creatures of public opinion, and when public opinion is once formed everything is done. It must be remembered, however, that the work of improving the Mississippi must be done in Washington. The East has just come to realize that there is a river here, and we can count on their steady and bitter opposition to any measure looking to Mississippi improvement. The trouble has been hitherto that we have had to carry too many encumbrances. What we should demand henceforward is the untrammeled improvement of the Mississippi. We must look for help to the great Southeastern States—Georgia, Alabama, the Carolinas and Florida. I made it my business to see the Senators from these States before I left Washington, and they assure me that the Southeast will join hands with the Mississippi Valley upon this question of Mississippi improvement. Together we can carry measures for our mutual improvement which alone might be unmanageable. The Southeast has its harbors to improve and we have the river—together we can command success."

"What do you think of Missouri politics?"

"You know I have been away for five months and so I have lost the track of things. There seems to be something of a scare about the Greenbackers in the West generally, but they don't amount to anything. Greenbackism feeds upon financial distress, and as long as this country is prosperous there is nothing to fear from it."

"What about Gov. Crittenden?"

"I have known Crittenden all my life, and I don't believe he ever meant to do anything but what was fair and right. I think he has made some great blunders, but I think he is a good man. I have been told by my friends that he was getting up a syndicate to beat me for the Senate—but there is time enough to consider the election when it is at hand. If I should desire a re-election I have every confidence that the people of Missouri will judge me according to my works, and when a public servant does his duty the people do not forget it."

THE great sale of 1,000 fine gold watches will take place to night at 7:30 at Cooper's 209 North Fifth street.

'CHANGE NOTES.

Maximum for Cash Grain—A Cotton Bear—A Waterloo for the Bulls.

One of the young grain operators, who has been working hard of late—and late at night, too—fainted on the floor of the Exchange this morning and had to be sent home in a carriage. He will come around all right.

It has been proposed to establish a benevolent and protective association on the Chicago Board of Trade similar to the benevolent association of the St. Louis Exchange, but the young members in Chicago raise a serious objection to paying the expenses and supporting the families of the old men of the board.

At this morning's call Mr. C. H. Albers moved that the maximum amount that could be sold on open bids of cash at the 10 a. m. and 2:15 p. m. calls should be 5,000 bushels. This was amended by A. W. Evans, who moved that the maximum at all the calls, including the 11:30 a. m., should be that amount on open cash bids. This proposition was adopted by the operators and will go into effect at once.

The futures of speculation are being well illustrated now. A great many who make such handsome profits, and indeed, fortunes out of the advance in grain, are now dropping or have already lost all they made. One case is that of a country shipper who came here last spring from an interior town of this State. He was sure of a short crop and backed his opinion with all the money he could raise. And he stuck it rich, his winnings running all the way from $75 000 to $100,000, some say more. If he had been content with this all would have been well, but, bitten badly by the speculative fever, he continued on, and to make a grand stake went long on everything—grain, provisions, cotton and stocks. The break came, but he held on, and now, it is said, he has not got a dollar left.

The situation in cotton from a bear standpoint was given by a certain cotton buyer this morning as follows: "Last year this time middling uplands was 6¼d, while it is now 6d; and arrivals are about the same as then, whilst New York spot quotations are ⅝c above same time last year, or ⅞c higher than Liverpool if we take the difference in that market and in futures in New York. The difference is fully that great, January being 11.82c, against 10.83c same time last year. It requires considerable nerve, it would seem to me, to bull cotton on such a disparity. In spite of the discrepancy in receipts thus far we still have a visible supply a quarter of a million in excess of last year and as to crop, estimates now are identical with last year. The Cotton Exchange then premised 5,300,000, the Bureau 5,890,000 and the popular figures were 5,750,000 to 6,000,000 bales, with bets made on the latter, and yet we are ⅞c higher now than at that time in New York, whilst Liverpool is weakening at about the same prices. I repeat, it requires courage to be long cotton at these prices. In this market we are, if anything, higher again than New York, and it would thus appear that the further we get from the fields the cheaper the article. Last year the weather scare of this month caused a sharp advance, but which on second sober thought was again all lost, and about as quickly as gained. This year we are not likely to be so badly imposed upon. With such facts before us it would seem unreasonable to expect any immediate advance, but on the contrary it is much more probable that a decline will be first in order."

"She's a Waterloo, ain't she?" remarked Col. Gregory, as he turned away from this morning's call. And truly it was for the bulls. They were run over by the bears, horse, foot and dragoons, and "sauve que peut" was their cry. The break-down in values of wheat and corn was fearful this morning, and demoralization and panic ruled the hour. All the bears in all markets of this country seemed to go in to hammer her flat, and they succeeded in inviting several cents off the former value of those cereals without trouble. In Chicago there was a perfect raid made upon the markets, and New York, Baltimore, Toledo, St. Louis and all others followed suit. Here wheat started in at sharp declines, and with an extreme pressure to sell and the discouraging reports from other points, and with no efforts whatever of the bulls to bolster up the market, prices were run down until they were full three cents below last evening's close. Corn felt the influence of this depression to an extreme degree, and as sellers were seemingly frantic in their efforts to sell, prices struck a downward gait that quickly carried them 2½@3¼c lower. It was a wild and jubilant day for the bears. One of them, who was letting out his delight in little short yelps of satisfaction as the Chicago chalk marks settled rapidly down, shouted, "It's a legitimate decline, and don't you forget it! The boys have found out that the stuff is too high and they are going to put it down where it belongs."

"Where it belongs" no one seems to know, though a great many are waiting for it to get below that point, when they will go in and buy for a rise. "Ah," sadly sighed one who had made his pile on the bull side, "my friend, you will have to turn your attention to writing up bear items. As for me, I will get out of this. O hello's occupation's gone." Few of the bulls seemed to see any hope in the near future, though one hopeful man "looked for a reaction." This was just before the worst break of the day came. "The bears have things in their own hands now," remarked an operator. "Let them see that they don't get it too low. If they do they may have their scalps lifted." All the St. Louis firms are solid on this break, and no apprehensions are felt of any failures. Commission men and brokers have been very conservative for some time. They plainly saw this market was out of line with all the others, and they either pulled out of the deals altogether or else went in on the short side. And some of these latter have turned a pretty penny in this decline.

Damon and Pythias in a Police Court.

"Nellie Gardiner," called out Deputy Marshal Hough, in the First District Police Court to-day. A young woman attired in a well-worn circular stepped up to the bar:

"What's your name?" said Clerk Mateer as he turned to the young woman.

"Annie Price, sir."

"We don't want to try you," said Judge Jecko. "We want Nellie Gardiner, who is charged with keeping a disreputable house."

"If you please, sir, Nellie is a friend of mine. I brought a certificate from a physician to show she could not come, and I'll answer for her."

"I am sorry you can't serve your friend, but we want Nellie Gardiner."

The officer was sworn and on the testimony Nellie was fined $50 on the charge and her friend Annie left to take her the news.

DIAMONDS at last year's prices at Cooper's, 209 N. Fourth street.

EAST ST. LOUIS.

Henry Reilly was jailed yesterday for having no vehicle license, but was released for want of prosecution.

J. G. Van Winkle was assessed $3 and costs by 'Squire Eggmann for obstructing the streets with a train of cars.

Officer Jerry Coffey found a couple of packages of spices and some children's school books yesterday. The property awaits an owner at the Police Station.

The candidates held a meeting last night and made arrangements for having 40,000 tickets printed. The County Commissioners will pay only a portion of the expenses. The printing will be divided equally between the two local printing offices.

Richard Allen, a watchman on the bridge, was arrested last night on a charge of burglary. Allen, while under the influence of liquor, strolled into a car loaded with merchandise to sober up, and while there was arrested. He will have a hearing before one of the Justices this evening.

DYING OF THEIR INJURIES.

John Mathaei at Central Turner Hall, and George Briggs at City Hospital.

Unoffending Victims of Murderous Hoodlums and an Excited Man.

Mr. John Mathaei, proprietor of Central Turner Hall, on Tenth, between Walnut and Market streets, is in a dying condition to-day, the result of injuries received last Sunday afternoon at the hands of a gang of hoodlums. A social club had a gathering at Central Hall. About 5:30 o'clock a crowd of roughs went up the stairs, and, without heeding the door-keeper, they burst into the hall, where dancing was in progress. The attention of the attaches of the hall was called to this disorderly proceeding. Mr. Mathaei told them they would have to pay the admission money before they would be allowed to mix in with the dancers. One of the crowd replied that they were going to get into that hall if they had to pull a wall down to do so. Mathaei ordered them away, when three of the crowd pounced upon him. The others attacked and began beating him with their fists. Though a strong man himself, he was powerless in the hands of half a dozen of the rowdies. Jacob Kohlhauf, the carpenter, was attracted up stairs by the noise and arrived when the crowd was beating the proprietor. He asked them to stop, but they only turned on him. Mr. Mathaei was knocked down and kicked and beaten unmercifully. In an attempt to protect himself Mathaei, who was completely at the mercy of the roughs by this time, was thrown down the stairs. In the fall his head struck the floor, fracturing the skull. He was taken to his home, where Drs. Hartwig and Hypes made an examination. Dr. Frank was called in later, and it was found that the outer table of the skull was fractured and the brain bruised. The injured man has been unconscious since he received the fracture of the skull, and to-day the physicians gave up all hopes and expect his death before night. Mathaei was formerly a United States mail agent, and ran on the St. Louis and San Francisco Road. He is a member of Temple Lodge, 121, A. F and A. M., Knights of Honor and Order of United Workingmen. The police have made no arrests yet as none of the roughs were known to the persons present. A perfect description of the men was furnished the officers, but they have been unable to find the men described.

GEORGE BRIGGS,

who was shot last Saturday night at the Golden Lion saloon, corner of Seventh and Pine streets, by Allen Hickerson, is at the point of death at the City Hospital. Hickerson has been transferred to the jail on a charge of assault to kill to await the result of Briggs' injuries. The ball scattered the spinal column, and from that fact the physicians had no hope for the man, though he was in excellent condition and a fine specimen of physical manhood when he was shot. Hickerson still adheres to the story that two men who accompanied him into the saloon intended to rob him, and while firing at them he accidentally shot Briggs and J. Savage. The latter's wound is not serious. At noon to-day Briggs was still alive, but his death was expected every minute.

HERDIC ARRANGEMENTS.

They Will Wait at Theaters—Smoking Allowed—The New Lines Contemplated.

Marcus A. Wolff is contemplating several innovations which will make the Herdics even more popular than they are at present. Smoking will be permitted in all the coaches except when ladies are riding. In the mornings the coaches are usually filled with men, and as the Olive street line has seen fit to put on occasional smoking cars, the Herdics will go several better by allowing smoking in every car. The line on Locust street is expected to be running about the 15th of the month. The vehicles are ready, and the only thing in the way is that the pink-eye has affected a large percentage of the horses. The two lines will run in conjunction. Ten coaches will start from Grand avenue and Pine street, and the same number from Grand avenue and Locust street at regular intervals every morning. When Fifth street is reached, they will go along that thoroughfare those which came down Locust going back Pine street, and vice versa. In this way a continuous round will be made. The Jefferson line will not be started until spring. As soon as the horses have sufficiently recovered, and probably before the 15th of the month, Mr. Wolff intends to station Herdics at the door of every theater each evening. When the performance closes, the coaches will be driven out over the line, running along Pine street to Grand avenue. The fare will be ten cents. If the plan is successful more coaches will be brought into service. This last mentioned plan will be very acceptable to theater-goers. Mr. Wolff was asked whether the traffic on the line was not falling off. He replied that it was not as heavy as it had been at first. It naturally grew smaller when the novelty had worn off. The road was making money and he was satisfied.

Cupid's Worst Day.

The marriage record for to-day confirms the popular prejudice against unions on Friday. But two couples had ventured up to 1 o'clock. Denis McEvoy and Christiana O'Connell, and Frank James Hannigan and Susan Ann Fries.

ABOUT TOWN.

THE Union Market is being treated to a new tar and gravel roof.

NEARLY all the trains came into Union Depot on table time this morning. This is an unusual thing at the depot.

DETECTIVE DESMOND this morning found a red leather pocket-book at Fifteenth and Morgan streets, supposed to belong to Lizzie Back.

THERE were thirteen cases tried this morning by Judge Denison of the Second District Police court. The total fines imposed amounted to $20.

MARY MAEDER, a destitute widow, arrived at Union Depot this morning on her way to Kansas City. Through the police she was directed to relations living near Gravois road and McNair avenue.

G. BRECKENRIDGE is about to erect an iron-clad building on Spruce, between Twelfth and Fourteenth streets, two stories in height, to be used temporarily as a planing mill. The cost is estimated at $750.

THE headquarters of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Missouri were removed to-day from the Masonic Hall to the Real Estate Exchange, southwest corner of Seventh and Chestnut streets. The new quarters have two rooms, both elegantly furnished.

IN the goodness of their hearts the police have furnished a wash-room at the Four Courts for reporters. The army of police scribes are beginning to get tired of writing against posts and gas chandeliers and propose making an application for better quarters in their own way.

GREAT sale of Diamonds and Watches at Cooper's Auction Sale to night.

FOUR COURTS NOTES.

John Britz was fined $1 and costs for driving a mule with a sore leg.

Emma Dugdale had an examination to-day on a charge of disposing of chattels mortgaged, and was discharged on the evidence.

John Willkins and Snead Powell will be taken to the Penitentiary to-morrow. They are under sentence from the Criminal Court.

George Johnson waived examination in the Court of Criminal Correction to-day on a charge of robbery, and was held to answer in the sum of $1,500.

Frank O'Brien, charged with grand larceny, was allowed to plead guilty to petit larceny in the Court of Criminal Correction to day and was sentenced to three months in the Workhouse.

John Murphy, who was shot three times in the leg by Officer Matt Kelly while running away, was returned from City Hospital to Four Courts to-day, sufficiently recovered to stand the hardships of a trial on a charge of highway robbery.

Mr. W. C. Steigers

Will call on merchants desiring information on rates for advertising, etc., in POST DISPATCH.

"THE WORLD."

A Compromise Effected Between Rival Theatrical Managers

There is to be no theatrical war after all. The rival managers have shaken hands across "The World," and Mr. Joseph Robertson of the People's Theatre has agreed to play his coming attraction under the title of "Saved From the Wreck," while the Grand Opera-house people will place the original "World" on the boards December 4, for a season of two weeks. Mr. Jo Brooks, of the managerial firm of Brooks & Dickson, of New York City, who have the only right to play "The World" through the West, came on here this morning to look over the field before inaugurating a war. He went to see Mr. Robertson, who explained how he had been induced to give the so called "World" Combination an engagement. Mr. Robertson said the manager represented to him that he had a perfect understanding with Mr. Colville, the owner of the play, to reproduce it in this section; that he had the genuine article. The engagement was set for the coming week, and last Monday Mr. Robertson began to advertise the play as "The World" and the reigning dramatic sensation. The management of the Grand Opera-house at once took exceptions and wrote and published a bitter card against the managers of the People's. Mr. Brady was telegraphed for. His coming had made everything all right. Mr. Robertson explained and a compromise has been effected whereby "Saved from the Wreck" will be presented to the patrons of the People's. The play is spectacular in character, and has some scenes similar to "The World." The scenery is said to be fine, the company good, and the entertainment abounding not only in excellent acting, but startling mechanical effects. "The World," however, will be played at the Grand Opera house, beginning December 4. It had a long run at Wallack's and has been pronounced the most remarkable play of recent days. All the scenery used at Wallack's will be placed on the Opera-house stage. Two sets are used, and such as the raft scene and the explosion were sent on two weeks ahead of the company, as they must be accurately fitted to the stage. The mechanical effects are wonderful and the illusion is perfect. Later on in the season the same play will be given at the People's.

CITY PERSONALS.

Mr. J. K. Bole, secretary of the Otis Steel Company, Cleveland, Ohio, is at the Southern.

Gen. Jo Shelby arrived in the city this morning, and is stopping at the Planters. He is here on railroad business.

Mr. G. M. Palmer, assistant stage manager of the Wilbur Opera Company, by kind permission of Mr. A. L. Wilbur, will act as stage manager for "The Mascot" performance on Sunday night by the Y. M. H. A.

The Coal Pool.

At the meeting of the Illinois Railroad Commission this forenoon at Belleville only two witnesses were examined. Those were for the defense—the Louisville and Nashville Railroad—and were Daniel Knecht and Conrad Reinecke. Mr. Knecht is a large operator on the line of this road, and is a member of the Coal Exchange. He testified that the railroad had not discriminated in favor of the operators belonging to the Coal Exchange, but that, on the contrary, it had favored the operators who do not belong to that organization. This has been frequently complained of by the Exchange members. Conrad Reinecke has three mines on the road, and testified to about the same in substance as did Mr. Knecht. Reinecke also is a member of the Coal Exchange. When Mr. Knecht had any hard questions to answer he referred to God Almighty.

Clocks on a Strike.

The electric clocks were all out of gear to-day. At 2 o'clock this afternoon the clock at the Planters' House pointed straight to 1 o'clock, the one at the Southern said it was twenty minutes past 1, etc.

At the office of the School Superintendent the clock also struck work about 12 m., and refused to resume during the afternoon. At the hotels the cessation caused much confusion, and at the Southern Manager Bates ordered the dead to be covered.

A Short Call.

The Earl of Mayo and Mr. Porter Porter dropped in on 'Change to-day for a few moments. Inasmuch as the word was passed round that there was a real live English lord on the floor and the boys began to try to find out before whom they were to bow down and worship, the Britishers hastily left the Chamber without being introduced.

Broke His Neck.

William Crannoud, a carpenter, fell from a ladder at the corner of Main and Fillmore streets, Carondelet, at 1 o'clock to day, breaking his neck. Death ensued.

LATER POLITICAL NEWS.

The Star Route Case.

WASHINGTON, November 4.—Continuing the argument, Mr. Bliss said: We have no desire under ordinary circumstances to proceed outside of the general practice in criminal cases. We have no desire to avoid a grand jury and we think we might just as well charge that the other side is seeking to avoid a petit jury as that they should charge we are seeking to avoid a grand jury. We have no desire to do it, except where we can show cause why it should be done. I agree that under ordinary circumstances, and without good cause being shown, the proper and expedient way is to proceed before the grand jury. Col. Bliss cited various acts to show that the prosecution had a right to proceed by information in criminal cases, and it had been repeatedly recognized by Congress by authorizing criminal proceedings by indictment or information.

Redeeming Bonds.

WASHINGTON, November 4.—The following circular relative to the redemption of U. S. 3½ per cent bonds has just been issued by the Treasury Department:

WASHINGTON, November 4.

Notice is hereby given that on Wednesday next, and on each Wednesday thereafter through the present month and until otherwise ordered, the Department will redeem, at the office of the Assistant Treasurer of the United States at New York, paying par and interest accrued to date of redemption, any uncalled United States bonds, continuing to bear interest at 3½ per centum per annum, to an amount not exceeding $2,000,000 on each day mentioned.

[Signed] H. F. FRENCH, Acting Secretary.

Jail Burned.

PORTLAND, OREGON, November 4.—The Douglas County Jail at Roseburg burned this morning, and with it Charles Williams, incarcerated the day before for larceny. It is supposed he undertook to burn his way out, and the fire became unmanageable.

THE question of raising the commissions on option trades in Chicago from ⅛c to ¼c per bushel was defeated to-day by a vote of two to one.

MONEY.

Quotations of Money, Silver, Bonds, Stocks and Other Securities, Etc.

NEW YORK, November 4.—Stock market opened generally firm and higher, the greatest improvement being in Ind., B. & W., which opened at 49 against 48 at close yesterday. In early dealings the entire list became strong, and the advance recorded ¼ to 1¼. Northern Pacific preferred, Northwestern common and preferred and Wabash Pacific were most prominent in improvement. At the first board an upward movement was checked, and, under the influence of somewhat free sales, prices declined ¼ to 1, latter Denver and Rio Grande. Pacific Mail declined ⅝ at opening, but subsequently rose 1¼, and later reacted ½. Money 5@6. Prime mercantile 6@7. Bar silver 112⅝. Exchange steady, 80½ long, 84⅛ sight. Governments quiet and steady. States inactive. Railroads light request. Stocks—Since 11 o'clock prices recorded a further decline of ⅛ to ¼, which was followed by an advance of ¼ to 1½, latter Manhattan Elevated, which sold to 52⅛. Towards noon, however, speculation again became heavy and a decline of ¼ to 1 took place, most marked in Pacific Mail, Northwestern and Ind., B. & W. St. Louis and New Orleans rose 2¼ and Cincinnati, Sandusky and Cleveland 1 per cent. 6s extended 101; 5s 101⅞; 4½s 113; 4s 116; Pacific 6s '95 130.

The Markets.

FORENOON SESSION.

Flour—Receipts 6,863 brls. Lower again and weak, depressed by wheat; market very quiet. We quote: Fancy $6 85@7 10; choice $6 35@6 60; family $6 10@6 25; xxx $5 80@6 05; xx $5 35@5 50; x $4 90@5 15, superfine $4 55@4 65; fine $4 30@4 40; favorite brands 25@50 higher; patents $7 40@8 40.

Wheat—Receipts 1,549 sks, 22,775 bu. Broke down heavily in price on discouraging advices and urgent sellers. Futures unsettled and fluctuating violently, but generally weak and demoralized, closing at 2½ declines. Trades slow and weak, as buyers were offish; sales mainly to speculators of No. 2 red; Southern shippers and millers bought lightly. No. 2 red sold at $1 33¼@1 33 cash; $1 33⅜ November, latter closing at $1 33 bid; December at $1 37½@136, closing at $1 37; Jan. at $1 40⅜@1 39⅛, closing at $1 40; Feb. $1 43⅛@1 42, closing at $1 42⅜; No. 3 red sold at $1 25 this side, but $1 24½ was the best bid late; No. 4 at $1 16@1 15½; No. 2 Mediterranean at $1 33; No. 3 do salable at $1 26½ E. side; $1 27 asked for C.; rejected at 86, with $1 asked; No. 2 spring sold at $1 20½.

Corn—Receipts —— sks, 35,060 bu. Lower, with an unsettled, but usually a panicky and weak feeling prevalent, futures closing 1⅞@2⅜c off. Grade No. 2 mixed moved actively to order buyers, and exporters took hold at lowest prices. No. 2 white mixed scarce but dull; rejected do wanted; rejected in order demand. No. 2 mixed sold at 61@59⅞ cash, closing at 59⅞; November at 60⅜@60¼, closing at about 60; December at 63¼@61¾, closing at 62¼; year at 59½@59⅜; January at 63⅞@63¼, closing at 63⅝; February at 65½@64½, closing at 64⅞; May at 69⅜@67¾, closing at 68¼; No. 2 white-mixed salable at 67⅞ cash, and sold at 77½ May; rejected May at 60 in U., 62 this side, 63⅜ in St. L.; rejected at 67@65½ in St. L., 65¼ in C., 67⅛ in A., 67⅞ in U., 67⅞ bid for U. No grade salable at 46 regular, 50 in St. L., where 57 was paid for new and 63 bid for new white-mixed.

Oats—Receipts 61 sks, 12,000 bu. Also lower, but cash better sustained in value than anything else, as it was scarce and in feeding and order request; futures weak, with free sellers, closing 1@1¼c lower. No. 2 sold cash at 43¾@43¼ in E. and St. L., closing at 43¼, but regular offered at 43⅜ and U at 43 without a buyer; November sold at 43¾@43, closing at 42¾ bid; December at 44⅜@44¼; May at 48@48⅛; for year 42½ and for January 44⅜ bid; rejected in St. L. sold at 41; for No. 2 white 44 bid.

Rye—Receipts 40 sacks, 500 bushels. Depressed by the general decline, prices were lower and weak, but with a good order demand at the lower prices. No. 2 sold at 95 and rejected at 90.

Barley—Receipts 482 sks, 9,500 bushels. Steady and firm. We quote: Low and medium 75@90; prime to strictly prime 95@$1; choice $1 05@1 10; fancy $1 12½@1 15; Canada $1 15@1 25; California $1 28@1 30.

Hay—Receipts 214 tons. Firm, but quiet. Demand moderate and mainly for best stock. Sales this side—prairie $13@15; choice timothy $24 50@25.

Millfeed—Lower, but selling readily, sacked bran sold at 88½ on P. track, 91@90 at mill; bulk at 75 E track.

Provisions—Dull and weaker. Standard cash mess pork sold at $17 50, and salable at $16 50 November, December and year, $17 17½ January, $17 40 February; hard side brought $17 50 early. Prime steam lard offered at 11.40 February, bid 11¼. Loose dry salt shoulders held at 7 30, long clear at 9, clear ribs at 9.10, short clear at 9.40; latter boxed sold at 9½. Packed long clear sold at 10 and clear ribs at 10.15@10; shoulders worth 8½ and short clear 10⅝@¾, latter very scarce. S. C. hams 13@15c for summer make. Tallow 7@7½, according to quality. Breakfast bacon 13½@15c. Grease 5@6½ for brown, 5½@6c for yellow, 6½@7½c for white. Beef—Extra mess $13 00 per brl; family $7 25 per half-brl; dried 11½@14c per pound. CATTLE—The demand from the different classes of buyers fair for decent to fancy cattle. The supply was scant and consisted mainly of common and medium native and Southwest steers, which were worked off without much difficulty at strong prices. All classes of buyers were disappointed, and Eastern and interior shippers were ruled out of the market entirely. Local speculators were the leading operators. Grass Texans, none offered and in demand. Stock cattle slow. Milch cows with calves are wanted. Ruling quotations firm.

THE WORLD!
The Greatest Dramatic Sensation
OF THE SEASON
Is the Spectacular Play Entitled
THE WORLD.
To be produced at the Grand Opera-House week of December 4.
The success of this piece, under the management of Mr Samuel Colville in conjunction with Messrs. Brooks and Dickson, has induced certain unprincipled theatrical sharps to appropriate the title, and the attempt is being made to palm off upon the public a wretched melodrama which has been produced in the variety theaters throughout the country for the last three or four years under the harrowing name of "SAVED FROM THE WRECK."
The intelligent amusement patrons of St. Louis must not be deceived by these mountebanks who are attempting to attract attention to their stale and unmarketable produces by stealing the name of a play which has been made a success by genuine merit.
The Original World Sensation
Will be produced at the
GRAND OPERA-HOUSE
Under contract with Mr Collville, the purchaser of the right in England, and all other performances given under the title of "THE WORLD" in this city will be frauds and impositions upon the public.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

NOTICE.—In pursuance of an act of the General Assembly of the State of Missouri, approved May 14th, 1879 entitled "An act concerning the publication of judicial notices in cities having more than one hundred thousand inhabitants," the undersigned Judges of the Circuit Court of the City of St. Louis hereby give notice that on the 7th day of November, A. D. 1881, between the hours of 10 a. m. and 2 p. m. of said day they, will be in attendance in Court-room No. 4, at the Court-house, in the city of St. Louis, Missouri, for the purpose of receiving sealed proposals from the daily newspapers published in said city for the publication of all advertisements, judicial notices and orders of publication required by law to be made. Parties desiring to furnish such proposals are further notified that each bid must be accompanied by a bond in the penal sum of $20,000, with good and sufficient security, conditioned that the principal therein will correctly and faithfully publish in the newspaper specified all said advertisements, notices and orders in manner and form as required by law and according to the schedule of rates named in said proposals. Said proposals must each be accompanied by a sworn statement, made by the publisher of the paper in whose behalf the proposal is made, showing the bona fide daily circulation of such paper to be over three thousand copies; and no proposal will be considered in behalf of any newspaper unless it have a bona fide daily circulation of at least three thousand copies. Each bid must also specify the rate per line for the first and subsequent insertions of said advertisements, notices and orders, giving the character of the type to be used and the width of column. The right to reject all or any of the proposals made for the reason that said bids are not sufficiently definite or specific, or that the same are unreasonably high, is hereby reserved.

AMUSEMENTS.

POPE'S.

The Union Square Company has added nothing to its reputation here by the presentation of "French Flats" last night. The comedy was well acted throughout and no great fault was to be found in individual efforts of the actors, but the key of the affair was pitched a little too high and the company, in trying to make the play as good and refined as is their own acting, threw a glow of art over the scenes and tamed the rollicking spirit of the fun to a degree that was not as provocative of laughter as the play might otherwise have been. The audience seemed quite pleased with the performance, but if there were more life in the scenes, if the actors stepped out of the bounds of comedy and penetrated a little into the territory of farce, where "French Flats" belongs, the entertainment would go a great deal better. "French Flats" to-night again.

GRAND OPERA-HOUSE.

Miss Mary Anderson had a magnificent audience last night, the house being crowded in every part. She appeared in the role of Julia, in "The Hunchback," in which she dressed superbly and acted in a manner that caused her admirers to feel proud of her and to assert their faith in her ability more loudly than ever. Miss Anderson plays Julia splendidly, making it one of the finest impersonations in her repertory, and showing by her improvement in the part that she has closely analyzed and carefully studied it with a view to being as perfect as possible. Her beauty adds infinitely to the attractiveness of the character, and her acting is all that could be desired. She was well supported. To-night the bill will be "Love;" to-morrow afternoon, "Pygmalion and Galatea;" to-morrow night, "The Daughter of Rolande."

OLYMPIC.

The Wilbur Opera Company is being comparatively neglected by the public, which has been surfeited with "Mascot" music lately. The houses are light, but the opera is well done and those who witness it enjoy it.

PEOPLE'S.

The Big Four Vaudeville Company hold the boards at the People's until Saturday night. They give an excellent variety show.

MORE MASCOT.

The Epstein Opera Company is to produce "The Mascot" at the Grand Opera-house Sunday night for the benefit of the Young Men's Hebrew Association. There has been a very large sale of seats.

"WON AT LAST."

Steele Mackaye's play will be presented at Pope's next Tuesday night and during the remainder of the week. Mr. Ernest Albert is preparing some new and beautiful scenery for the piece.

Asher W. Miner
vs.
Samuel L. Carter John R. Lionberger, Bernard J. Reilly and C. Schnake.

It appearing from the affidavit filed herein this day that the defendant Samuel L. Carter is a non-resident of the State of Missouri, therefore, on motion of the plaintiff by attorney, it is ordered that said defendant be notified that a civil action has been commenced against the defendants, the object and general nature of which is to obtain a decree that a certain note made by Adelum E. White dated St. Louis February 5 1873, and payable at six months after date to the order of James Clements, for $675, at the Guardian Savings Bank, St. Louis, Mo., with interest at ten per cent per annum, has been fully paid and satisfied and was so satisfied and was void and of no effect, at the date of a pretended sale of property under a deed of trust given to secure the same, and that said note be delivered up to be cancelled; that the deed of trust given to secure the said note and dated 30th April, 1873, and recorded in book 467, page 395, made by Adelum E. White to Bernard J. Reilly in trust and conveying a lot of ground described as being in the city of St. Louis, Missouri, and in block No. 16 of the subdivision made by the commissioners of the fractional section No. 16 in township 45 north of range 7 east, and being the western half of lot one in said block, containing 25 feet on the north line of Lucas avenue by a depth northwardly of 134 feet 5 inches to an alley, be decreed to be satisfied and of no effect; that the delivery of said note and deed of trust by said Carter to the Broadway Savings Bank was a fraud on the plaintiff herein; that the same were received by said Broadway Savings Bank long after the maturity of the same and with notice of the fraudulent purpose of said Carter that the sale of said property under said deed of trust by said B. J. Reilly as trustee, and the deed made by said Reilly as such trustee to C. A. Schnake, purporting to convey said described property in execution of the said trust, were and are void and of no effect; that the deed made by said Schnake to John R. Lionberger as assignee of the Broadway Savings, Bank and purporting to convey said described property, was and is void and of no effect, and that neither said Schnake, the Broadway Savings Bank, or John R. Lionberger, its assignee, ever obtained any title to said lot of ground, and that said Lionberger, as assignee of said Broadway Savings Bank, be restrained from selling said lot of ground.

And unless he, said defendant, appear at the term of this court to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis on the first Monday of February next, and on or before the third day thereof answer the plaintiff's petition, the same will be taken against him as confessed.

And it is further ordered that a copy hereof be published according to law in the St. Louis POST-DISPATCH, a newspaper printed and published in the city of St. Louis.

A true copy from the record.

Estate of Charles P. Siener.

Now at this day comes Minnie E. Siener, administratrix of the estate of Charles P. Siener, deceased, and presents to the court her petition praying for an order for the sale of so much of the real estate of said deceased as will pay and satisfy the remaining debts due by said estate and yet unpaid for want of sufficient assets, accompanied by the accounts, lists and inventories required by law in such case, on examination whereof it is ordered that all persons interested in the estate of said deceased be notified that application as aforesaid has been made, and that, unless the contrary be shown on or before the first day of the next term of this court, to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis, within and for the city of St. Louis, on the first Monday of December next, an order will be made for the sale of the whole or so much of the real estate of said deceased as will be sufficient for the payment of said debts.

And it is further ordered that a copy hereof be published in some newspaper printed in the city of St. Louis aforesaid, for four weeks before the next term of this court.

Anna D. Wiese
vs.
Auguste Wiese.

It appearing from the petition herein, duly verified by affidavit, that the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Missouri, therefore, on motion of plaintiff by attorney.

It is ordered that said defendant be notified that a civil action has been commenced against him, the object and general nature of which is to obtain a decree of divorce from the bonds of matrimony existing between plaintiff and defendant, on the ground of abandonment, habitual drunkenness and indignities such as to render plaintiffs condition intolerable, and for a judgment granting plaintiff support and maintenance out of the property of defendant.

And unless he appear at the term of this court to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis on the first Monday of December next, and on or before the third day thereof answer the plaintiff's petition, the same will be taken against him as confessed.

Joseph Mantel
vs.
Anna Mantel.

It appearing from the petition herein, verified by affidavit, that the defendant is a non-resident of this State, on motion of plaintiff by attorney,

It is ordered that said defendant be notified that a civil action has been commenced against her, the object and general nature of which is to obtain a decree of divorce from the bonds of matrimony existing between plaintiff and defendant, because said defendant, wholly disregarding her duties as the wife of plaintiff, has offered such indignities to plaintiff as to render his condition intolerable, and has abandoned plaintiff.

And unless she appear at the term of this court to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis on the first Monday of December next, and on or before the third day thereof answer the plaintiff's petition, the same will be taken against her as confessed.

Sheriff's Sales.

SHERIFF'S SALE UNDER DEED OF TRUST.—Whereas, Diedrick Fangmann and Mary, his wife, by their deed dated the 10th of May, A. D. 1875, and recorded in the Recorder's Office of St. Louis County, now city, in book 520, page 258, conveyed to Diedrich H. Rump, in trust, the following described real estate lying and being in the city of St. Louis and State of Missouri, to-wit:

Lots numbered twenty-nine (29) and thirty (30) of block numbered two (2) of Foote's subdivision (city block No. 2368) as laid down upon the plat of said subdivision on file in the office of the Recorder of Deeds for said St. Louis county (now city,) the property herein conveyed having an aggregate front of fifty-seven feet (57) and six and one-half (6½) inches on the south line of Magnolia street by a depth southwardly of even width along the west line of Jefferson avenue of one hundred and thirty (130) feet more or less to the alley of said block; which said conveyance was made in trust to secure the payment of nine promissory notes in said deed described. And whereas one of the said notes remains due and unpaid, and the said Diedrich H. Rump, said trustee, has departed this life, without having completed the performance of duties imposed on him by said deed of trust, and the Sheriff of St. Louis county refusing to act, and the Circuit Court of the City of St. Louis having made an order on the 12th day of October, 1881, appointing the Sheriff of the City of St. Louis trustee, to execute said deed of trust in lieu and place of the original trustee. Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that, at the request of the legal holder of said notes, and by virtue of the said order of Court, and in pursuance of the provisions of said deed of trust, the undersigned will on

SHERIFF'S SALE UNDER DEED OF TRUST.—Whereas Peter Bianchi and Emma Bianchi, his wife, by their deed dated the 17th of August, A. D. 1874, and recorded in the Recorder's office of St. Louis county (now city), in book 510, page 15, conveyed to John C. Gairns in trust all their right, title, interest and leasehold estate in and to the following described real estate in the city of St. Louis and State of Missouri, to-wit:

A certain lot of ground lying in said city of St. Louis and fronting westwardly thirty-one (31) feet on Ninth street and running back eastwardly one hundred and twenty seven and a half (127½) feet, bounded on the north by Chestnut street, on the east and south by land now or formerly of James H. Lucas, and on the west by Ninth street, together with all erections and improvements thereon, being the same property leased by Henry F. Miller and wife to Abraham M. Gardner by indenture dated November 28, 1866, and assigned by said Gardner and his wife to Louis G. Botto and Peter Bianchi by indenture dated May 27, 1874, both which indentures are recorded in the Recorder's office of St. Louis county (now city), in book 494, page 445, and assigned as to an undivided one half interest thereof by Louis G. Botto to Peter Bianchi by indenture dated July 30, 1874, and recorded in said Recorder's office in book 504, page 244; also the following goods and fixtures now in the saloon on the above described premises: Counter and shelving, ice-chest, two pictures (walnut frames), cigar show case, and all other articles, bar fixtures, et cetera.

Which said conveyance was made in trust to secure the payment of a certain promissory note in said deed described.

And whereas the said note remains due and unpaid, and the said John C. Gairns, said trustee, has removed and is now absent from the State of Missouri, without having completed the performance of the duties imposed on him by said deed of trust, and the Circuit Court of the City of St. Louis having made an order on the 11th day of October, 1881, appointing the Sheriff of the City of St. Louis trustee to execute said trust in lieu and place of the original trustee.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that, at the request of the legal holder of said notes, and by virtue of the said order of court, and in pursuance of the provisions of said deed of trust, the undersigned will, on between the hours of 9 o'clock in the forenoon and 5 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the east front door of the Court-house in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, proceed to sell at public vendue, to the highest bidder, for cash, the above described leasehold estate, in and to the above described real estate, together with all the erections and improvements thereon, to satisfy said notes and the costs of executing said trust.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 9, 1881,

I. S. Mahan vs. Bayliss W. Hanna and Eliza McKee, administratrix of the estate of Wm. McKee, deceased.

No. 56,072.

It appearing from the amended petition in this cause that the defendant Bayliss W. Hanna is a non-resident of the State of Missouri, therefore, on motion of the plaintiff by attorney, it is ordered that said Bayliss W. Hanna be notified that a civil action has been commenced against him, the object and general nature of which is to obtain judgment against him for the sum of one thousand dollars with interest thereon at the rate of ten cent per annum from the 21st day of November, A. D. 1873, on account of a promissory note executed by James A. McKown to said Bayliss W. Hanna, which said note said Hanna assigned by indorsement to plaintiff, and also to obtain an order restraining the said Bayliss W. Hanna from assigning or otherwise disposing of or incumbering the claim of said Hanna against the estate of William McKee, deceased, or in any other manner attempting to hinder or delay the plaintiff in the recovery thereof; and that the said Eliza McKee, administratrix of said William McKee, may be restrained from paying the said claim or any portion thereof to the said Bayliss W. Hanna, or his assigns, or to any other person, pending the further order of this court; and that the said Eliza McKee, administratrix as aforesaid, may be ordered by this court to pay the sum finally found due or allowed and ordered paid by the Probate Court in and for the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, by the said Eliza McKee, administratrix as aforesaid, upon the said claim of Bayliss W. Hanna, or a sufficient portion thereof to satisfy the sum due from the said Hanna to plaintiff, to said plaintiff, to be applied upon or in satisfaction of the sum found due from said Hanna to the plaintiff.

And unless he appear at the term of this court to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis on the first Monday of December next, and on or before the third day thereof answer the plaintiff's amended petition, the same will be taken against him as confessed.

And it is further ordered that a copy hereof be published according to law in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, a newspaper printed and published in the city of St. Louis.

VEST'S GIFT.

A Valuable Document Presented to the Historical Society.

At the next meeting of the Historical Society, the third Sunday of the present month, Col. A. W. Slayback will present the following valuable relic, the nature of which is explained in the subjoined letter to the Colonel from U. S. Senator Vest:

WASHINGTON, D. C., October 31, 1881.
Col. A. W. Slayback.

MY DEAR SIR—Will you be kind enough to present to the Historical Society of Missouri the accompanying paper? It is the original order of Gen. R. E. Lee disbanding the army of Virginia. It was placed in my hands by one who, like you and myself, was loyal to the cause for which that army fought and who accepted in good faith the results of its defeat. I received the trust, but upon reflection I think that a paper so valuable to the historian and antiquarian, the last record of an army unequaled in history for its achievements, should be deposited with a society permanent in duration and devoted to preserving the correct history of each successive age. Truly, etc.,

G. G. VEST.

THE ORDER.

HEADQUARTERS, ARMY OF NORTHERN VIRGINIA, April 10, 1865.

General Orders No. 9.

After four years of arduous services, marked by unsurpassed courage and fortitude, the Army of Northern Virginia has been compelled to yield to overwhelming numbers and resources.

I need not tell the brave survivors of so many hard-fought battles, who have remained steadfast to the last that I have consented to this result from no distrust of them; but feeling that valor and devotion could accomplish nothing that would compensate for the loss that must have attended the continuance of the contest, I determined to avoid the useless sacrifice of those whose past services have endeared them to their countrymen.

By the terms of the agreement officers and men can return to their homes and remain until exchanged. You will take with you the satisfaction that proceeds from the consciousness of duty faithfully performed, and I earnestly pray that a merciful God will extend to you His blessing and protection.

With an increasing admiration of your constancy and devotion to your country, and a grateful remembrance of your kind and generous consideration for myself, I bid you all an affectionate farewell.

R. E. LEE, General.

YORKEY PETE'S CENTENNIAL.

The Distinguished Boot-Black's Visit to Yorktown.

The distinguished labor and shoe-brush agitator "Yorkey Pete" has just returned from the Yorktown celebration, which he attended because, by some striking coincidence, somebody in the long ago named the place so that "Yorkey" could claim an orthographical kinship with it. The celebration was graced with the presence of "Yorkey" and twenty other St. Louis shoe-blacks, who gave everybody on the ground a "patent leather shine," from the baronial Von Steubens down to the common New York militiamen. "Yorkey" tells some interesting stories about his experiences. Of course he traveled as the guest of the railroad companies, making the journey there and back by short stages and carefully avoiding meetings with the conductors and brakemen of trains. At Yorktown he found the colored forces in possession of the field. Three hundred black bootblacks from Richmond were monopolizing the "shining." Yorkey organized the Caucasian forces, including boys from as remote a section as California. They broke into the tents of the Seventh New York Regiment and stole swords; some got clubs; others used their boxes, and after a severe struggle lasting two days, during which a St. Louis bootblack named Johnny Jordan almost cleft an Ethiopian boy's skull with a sabre stroke in a wild hand to hand encounter, the sable army was routed and "Yorkey" and his troops stood like Washington and Lafayette, victors on the very same field and, perhaps, on the identical spot where the conquering American generals received the sword of Lord Cornwallis 100 years before. "Yorkey" has now, however, ceased being a hero and is once again polishing up sandals at ten cents a pair in all kinds of weather and under all conditions of the streets.

"Ben Walker, do you know what you are charged with?" said Clerk Matier in the First District Police Court this morning, as a colored man stepped up.

"No, I don't know," said Ben.

"You are charged with keeping a dangerous dog."

"Ya-as, sah."

"Have you got a dog?"

"No, sah."

"Did you have one on the 30th ult?."

"No, sah."

The case was then continued for the city until the 15th, and as the defendant turned he muttered to himself a vow that there wasn't any dog in town he would accept for a present during the next two weeks.

MERCURY.

Something About the Planet and Its Transit Next Monday.

An Astronomical Phenomenon Which Will Last for Five Hours.

Astronomers and college students are now preparing their telescopes for a glance at the coming transit of Mercury, which will take place on next Monday. Mercury is a curious planet and is seldom seen without a telescope, because it seldom departs more than 29° from the sun. Copernicus, the astronomer who discovered the true system of heavenly motion, mourned that he should go down to his tomb without seeing it. The Egyptians knew it. The Greeks called it Apollo when visible in the morning, and at night Mercury, the god of thieves, because it was supposed to light lawbreakers to their untoward actions. In the telescope it shows quarters, halves, etc., like the moon, whence, of course, it is argued that it shines by reflected light from the sun. It is the nearest planet to that luminary, its distance from it being 44,200,000 miles.

The word transit is from the Latin, and signifies passing across. When Mercury has a distance from the ecliptic, or path of the sun around the earth, less than the semi-diameter of the sun, then Mercury's disk appears projected on the disk of the sun. Through an ordinary telescope it looks a black spot in the sun, slightly smaller than a billiard ball, and its motion is very slow, it taking from three to five hours to cross over that body. Transits can only occur when the sun, Mercury and the earth are in the same straight line, so that an observer, looking from the earth, has his view of the sun obscured by Mercury, which is passing between. These three bodies are in the same straight line about the 4th of May and the 7th of November, so that transits must occur on or about these days. They happen at somewhat irregular intervals, but after seven and thirteen years transits at the same node may be looked for. The "node" is the astronomer's technical term for the point at which the path of a planet passes through the plane of the ecliptic, or path of the sun around the earth.

These transits or crossings of Mercury, as well as those of Venus, which occur at greater intervals, have been observed since Galileo invented the telescope. In late years little attention is paid to them, because they are of little scientific value. The first that was closely watched occurred in 1799. On this occasion the planet showed against the sun a dark spot, surrounded by a ring not so dark. This was supposed to be caused by the partial refraction or absorption of the sun's rays while passing through the atmosphere that surrounds Mercury. This ring has not been observed since, but all observers note the shadowy nature of the light which separates the dark from the light part of the planet. Were there no airs about Mercury, this line would be sharply defined. Later transits occurred on November 12, 1861, November 5, 1868, and May 6, 1878.

The transit on Monday occurs late in the afternoon. The first contact for an observer at St. Louis will take place at 4:39 p. m., about twenty minutes before sundown. The most of the phenomenon will therefore be lost at this point. It will be invisible at Washington. The crossing will not be seen by persons with the naked eye, but a telescope or a pair of good field glasses will enable anybody to enjoy the beginning of contact here.

Those who are anxious to witness the show had better make arrangements as the next transit is not due until May 9, 1891, and will then only last three hours and ten minutes. The crossing on Monday will be made near the center of the sun's disk.

A PERFECT GEM.

Taste and Enterprise Furnish an Elegant Resort on North Sixth Street.

The public may be interested to know that a liberal enterprise, directed by refined taste, is about to restore a popular social rendezvous in the heart of town. For some time past extensive decorations and improvements have been noted without and within an elegant establishment located at 110 N. Sixth street, east side, a few doors from the Chestnut street corner, formerly known as the Health Office. In its earlier days it was recognized by the best classes as the only select social gathering-place in town. The Health Office catered only to the highest order, furnishing the choicest libations amid sumptuous surroundings combining ease, comfort and luxuriance. It is gratifying to state that the establishment has now passed into the hands of a gentleman who will revive the desirable features of a bon-ton saloon exclusively and thus fill a void in the vicinity. Mr. T. E. Power, whose name is identified with the prosperous career of the well-known resort at the corner of Third street and Washington avenue, opens the doors of the new saloon, 110 North Sixth street, to morrow morning, where from 10 to 12 o'clock an inaugural entertainment, including a delicious repast, will be provided by the genial proprietor. Mr. Power may be congratulated upon the elegant and tasteful arrangement of his handsome new establishment. It can boast undoubtedly of the most substantial and the most elaborate fittings and appointments of any first-class saloon in the West. The counter, side counter, mirror-frames, screen and all the interior fittings are of solid walnut. An elegant bronze figure supports a clock placed in the center of the bar, and a delicate profusion of glassware furnished by Miller & Stephenson ornaments the side-counter. Three costly crystal chandeliers suffuse light in the front of the saloon and the luxurious apartment in the rear, which is reflected in the massive plate glass mirror adornments of the comfortable establishment. The gas fittings throughout are of the most approved order from the firm of Mawdsley & Mepham. The floor is elegantly carpeted and the rear windows upholstered by the Kennard Carpet Company. The exterior decorative work has been superbly executed by Flesh & Mook in the Eastlake and Japanese styles, a rich combination of black and gold, set off by gold-tipped railings enclosing a richly-tiled vestibule. The wines and liquors dispensed will be only of the best and purest brands, and everything of the highest quality will be served to the patrons of the new select resort.

A PRACTICAL JOKE.

Hunting Down a Rumor by Moonlight at Midnight.

Chief Kennett arrived at his office this morning troubled and weary. After sending a physician to his residence to quiet the nerves of his family he settled down to work. The cause of his anxiety was loss of sleep. About midnight last night a rumor reached the ear of a morning reporter to the effect that he was badly "scooped" on police news. The horrible significance of this cannot be realized by the uninitiated; but suffice it to say that it means considerable. The night was far advanced, and forthwith the scribe hired a hack and ordered the Jehu to drive his steeds at their best speed to the Chief's residence, on St. Ange and Park avenues. After a hard drive they arrived there. The long continued and loud jingling of the Chief's door-bell aroused the neighbors, window sashes went up and heads popped out. The horses became infused with the spirit of the occasion and were prancing about. On the outside end of the door bell wire hung the reporter. He finished his interview and left. The Chief had no news. The hack was scarcely a block away when another hack dashed up Park avenue and pulled at the Chief's residence. Another reporter jumped out and suspended himself on the bell knob. The neighbors, who had retired in a wondering mood, rushed to the windows again, and the scene was partially changed. The reporter of the other English morning paper had heard the rumor. He departed in peace, and in a few minutes the rattling of wheels was heard in the distance on the avenue, and another hack appeared in sight. This time two German reporters rushed up the steps and began pulling frantically at the bell. By this time the neighborhood was awake and wondering, and after a short interview the nocturnal visitors retired. The moon had gone down and the houses cast their shadows across the avenue at 2 o'clock this morning when a hack containing the last instalment of reporters drove up. The pencil-shovers hurried up to the door while the driver leaned up against his off horse and supported him. The bell-wire was cut, and after working for a few minutes the reporters withdrew and day broke peacefully on the scene.

FROM PRICE TO SPEED.

The Passenger Rate War Among Eastern Lines Taking New Form.

Express Trains Now Make the Trip From New York to Chicago in Twenty-five Hours.

Following the competition in passenger rates between the great Eastern lines controlled by Vanderbilt on the one hand and the Pennsylvania Central on the other, a contest for speed in the passenger service has set in. A few days since the Pennsylvania Central inaugurated a special fast service between New York and Chicago. Limited express trains composed entirely of Pullman and hotel cars run over the Fort Wayne route via Mansfield, Pittsburg, Harrisburg and Philadelphia with connections at Harrisburg for Baltimore and Washington. These trains leave Chicago at 3:30 p. m. and New York at 8 a. m., arriving in New York at 6:30 p. m. following day; Philadelphia, 4:10 p. m.; Baltimore, 3:55 p. m; Washington, 5:10 p. m. The New York train reaches Chicago at 9:40 a. m. following day.

This is a run of 912 miles in twenty-five hours and forty minutes, an average speed of thirty-six miles an hour. The hotel cars are run on these trains between New York and Chicago, with sleeping cars for Philadelphia, Baltimore and Pittsburg. The trains are limited as to number of passengers, and an extra rate of $8 is charged between Chicago and New York, but this includes the sleeping car accommodation, and the present rate of first-class fare from Chicago to New York is $14 50; hence $22 50 covers the entire expense, including sleeping berth, for this exclusive fast service. The New York Central management has announced as a special counter movement a special limited service of first-class trains between New York and Chicago via Buffalo, Cleveland and the Lake Shore, accomplishing the journey of 980 miles in 25 hours. This would present an average speed of forty-five miles an hour. That the benefit of the limited express service may extend to St. Louis the Wabash, St. Louis and Pacific Road this morning announces that on and after Monday next a first-class express train will run between St. Louis and New York, leaving the Union Depot at 7:50 a. m., reaching New York over the New York Central Road at 6:30 p. m. the following day, a distance of 1,172 miles in 33 hours and 40 minutes, and that breakfast and dinner will be served in dining-cars on this train. In other words connection will be made at Toledo or Cleveland with the Chicago and New York limited express train, to be inaugurated over the New York Central system in opposition to the Fort Wayne service of the Pennsylvania Central Road. It now remains to be seen whether the latter road will extend its limited express service to St. Louis over the Vandalia Line. A few years since, when the Baltimore and Ohio Road accelerated its passenger service and reached out for Western business, the Pennsylvania Central ran a first-class train from here to New York in 32 hours, leaving the Union Depot at 8 o'clock in the morning, arriving in New York at 6 o'clock following evening, a distance of 1,063 miles. It was soon withdrawn, however, to conciliate the Baltimore and Ohio management, which threatened at that time to cut rates. The fastest service accomplished by the Vandalia Line at present between St. Louis and New York is thirty-eight hours and a half—although the Pennsylvania Central Road runs the fastest trains in the country between Philadelphia and New York, ninety miles in one hour and forty five minutes. With the advantages of a double track through Pennsylvania, the competition in speed will now doubtless take the shape of a limited express train service between St. Louis and New York over the Vandalia, although nothing is known on the subject as yet.

The Gould management has recently introduced an accelerated train service between St. Louis and Galveston over the Iron Mountain route, running a through train from the Union Depot to Galveston every morning; likewise a through train every morning over the Missouri Pacific route to San Antonio—distances of 1,200 miles in forty-eight hours. The Eastern competition being changed from price to speed, public interest is strongly manifested in these changes, but experienced railroad managers here say that in speed there must be a limit to the competition and that with due regard to the safety of passengers trains over the Western roads cannot well be run above an average of thirty-five miles an hour, including stops.

Garfield Monument Fund.

During the last forty-eight hours more than four hundred names, including many of our very best citizens, have been added to the roll of subscribers to the St. Louis Garfield Monument, and from day to day the fund is more palpably becoming, as was from the first proposed, a people's testimonial. The contributors within the period mentioned comprise Balmer & Weber, Isidor Busch, Hoffman Bros., Jno. D Percy, the Zelle family, E. J. Xaupi, Brown & Houdt and H. A. Hunicke, $5 each; Hudson Bros., $10; Samuel Cupples & Co., for each of the firm, $20; employes of Wm. Barr Dry Goods Co., $50; officers and employes of Waters Pierce Oil Co., $28 75; employes of J. H. Wear, Boogher & Co., $28 75; officers and employes of Post-office, $120, besides a number of smaller subscribers whose offerings the treasurer seems to set more store by than even the larger gifts. If people who have not yet contributed would consider how great a tax upon the time of the gentleman who has the matter in hand is the daily receipts and taking proper account of a multitude of small scores, continued through several weeks, perhaps they would hasten in kindness to lighten his work by sending in their offerings at once. There cannot be less than 20,000 persons yet to be heard from who are willing to aid in erecting the monument. As Bishop Ryan judiciously observed, on one or other side it may well be taken part in by everybody. Besides, its claims are the easiest satisfied, since there are few indeed who cannot contribute some sum between $5 and 25 cents.

LARGE stock of Opera Glasses to be sold at Cooper's Auction to night.

Clearing Caldwell.

The Caldwell investigating committee will meet to-morrow night to prepare a report. The nature of their conclusion can be pretty well guessed by this time. It is well known that four out of the seven members are Caldwell's friends, or were so before the investigation. Mr. Judson, though known to be an anti Caldwell man when the election for Superintendent was on the tapis, leaned to the other side in appointing the committee and gave Caldwell the benefit of a majority. The evidence is very conflicting, and nobody will be surprised if Caldwell is found innocent.

The general sentiment of the members of the board is that the charges were not proven. There is some talk of a minority report, but this will hardly be presented.

A Vexatious Error.

A morning paper has the following under the head of municipal notes: "The Clerk of the Circuit Court has not yet made a settlement with the City Treasurer." Mr. Vogel's attention was called to the above by a POST-DISPATCH reporter and he said: "This is certainly a mistake. It does not refer to the Clerk of the Circuit Court, as I invariably make my settlements on the first of every month except when the first falls on Sunday, and then I make settlement the following day. I have the Treasurer's receipt for my settlement the first of the present month, when I paid in $700."

SICK CHICKENS.

The Part They Played in Several Slick Swindles.

The swindler always has a main eye to business. Recently what the distinguished philologist of the Globe-Democrat would term an epidemic has prevailed among the chickens of this section of the country, and the feathered victims died by the hundreds. Many commission houses found themselves in possession of large numbers of coops of sick chickens, and in order to get rid of the birds before they were actually dead they were placed on the market at about seventy-five cents per dozen. The swindler saw a good thing in this and immediately set to work in a manner that was highly successful, and that will be explained in a few stories told by gentlemen employed in the Golden Eagle Clothing Store.

"About two weeks ago," said Mr. Skinner, "two young men, apparently Irishmen, drove up to my residence in Taylorwick with a wagon full of chicken coops. They rang the bell and told my wife they had been delivering some chickens on Third street when myself and a neighbor, a commission merchant, came up, and liked the chickens so well that I ordered four dozen sent out to my house. They described me accurately to my wife, told her where I worked and satisfied her that they knew all about me. She at first refused to take any of the chickens, but they pleaded that they had hauled them a long distance to fill my order and that it would be hardship to send them back after all their trouble. She then asked the price and they told her $2 25 per dozen, whereupon she agreed to take two dozen. They told her that if she would take the four dozen they would give them to her at $2 10 per dozen, and she took them, paying $8 40 for the lot. When I got home I was astonished at the story, never having ordered a single chicken. I saw the birds were sick, and by feeding them on cayenne pepper and burning sulphur around I succeeded in saving about one-half of them. It was a clear swindle throughout."

Mr. Charles Kuhn told how, during the absence of Mrs. Henrietta Schergens, his mother-in-law, from her residence on Kossuth avenue and Farrar street, one day a week ago, two young Irishmen brought three dozen chickens to the door and told her husband that Mrs. Schergens had been down at Union Market, selected the chickens and ordered them sent home. They described the lady exactly, got 20 cents apiece for the thirty six sick chickens and drove away. Next day there were corpses enough in Mr. Schergens' back yard to have three dozen chicken funerals from the premises.

Mr. Myer had a friend on Sammit avenue, near Market, whose wife paid $4 50 for two dozen chickens to the same smart and swindling peddlers. Only nine of these chickens survived the sale.

Mr. Drilling, of the Golden Eagle, was victimized in a similar way a year ago. Two young men called at his house with two barrels of apples, said Drilling had ordered them and asked pay. Mrs. Drilling refused to pay and they asked her merely to receipt for the delivery of the apples. She did so. They made the receipt read like an order to pay for the stuff and then appeared at the store, where they told Drilling that his wife had bought the apples and sent them to him for the money. He paid the bill and on going home found the apples were rotten.

Moral: Look out for peddlers with sick chickens and barrels of rotten apples.

Fast Time to New York.
